Captured Alive Early Today at The Zoo Pit After Roaming Three Days

By Saul Feldman
OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A tired, hungry leopard—groggy from knockout drops hidden in meat bait—was captured alive early today at the zoo pit from which he escaped three days ago.

Zoo Keeper Julian Frazier fearlessly slipped a noose over the doped leopard's head just 63 hours after the animal leaped 18 feet out of the barless pit at Lincoln Park zoo.

Frazier, pulling the roped leopard, moved through one of the iron doors in the corridor, and pinned the beast against the door. Zoo attendants slipped up behind and pushed a cage around the animal, brought here a week ago from the jungles of India.

The escape of the leopard started an intensive "big game" hunt that used Marine reserves, helicopters, two-way radio, airplanes, thousands of nimrods and dozens of trained dogs.

But the stealthy leopard outmaneuvered the posse which had orders to "shoot to kill."

Frazier said the beast definitely had roamed as far away as 18 miles from the zoo, located on the Northeast city limits, since he escaped Saturday afternoon at 1 p. m. (Central Standard Time).

But the drive of hunger and the thought of his mate, probably, forced him back to the zoo.

Guards patrolled the 40-acre (CQ) zoo area, but using all his jungle cunning, the beast slipped by the armed guards early today.

Four-pound chunks of horse meat, filled with knockout drops, were placed about the pit from which he escaped.

He ate three pieces, became woozy and hid in a corridor at the side of the pit which leads to the den where his mate was caged.

A game ranger and two zoo employees found the mat missing at 2 a. m. they started a search and discovered him hidden in a hole in the corridor-still groggy but awake enough to growl.

Caged The Animal
Frazier rushed to the pit and at 4 a. m. (CST) the leopard was caged and sleeping off his hangover.

The two-hour struggle to cage the dopey but dangerous beast took place at a row of pits. A lion was caged on one side, a tiger on the other.

The pits are made to look like the natural habitats of the animals. They are concrete but colored to look like brown boulders. Inside, they are hollow and corridors lead to the pits and dens.

Officers and zoo workers stood by with guns. A searchlight illuminated the pit. A three-quarter moon added to the jungle-like atmosphere.

After it escaped, expert trappers and hounds attempted to track down the beast but always were at least 24 hours late.

Frazier estimated the leopard was at least 18 miles from the zoo before it returned to gnaw at the tainted meat.

Returned to Meat Ticket
"This is the only meat ticket he knew," Frazier said. "He had just been here a week but those things are smart."

Offers of help and hundreds of suggestions flooded in to Frazier from all over the country on how to capture the animal. While it was being caged, a dozen hounds were on their way by plane to aid in the search.

A detachment of Marine reserves, walkie-talkies, airplanes and two-way radio police cars were brought into the big game hunt. Frazier said the 175-pound leopard would be turned into the den with its mate sometime during the day but it would not be on public exhibition "until we dig a deeper pit."

Has No Name
The leopard and its mate, about three and a half years old, were bought by the zoo to replace two older animals.

One reporter asked Frazier if the leopard had a name.

"No, it wasn't here long enough for a name," he said, "but we've called him a lot of things the past few days."

Red Cross Month
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Gov. Forrest Smith today proclaimed the month of March "Red Cross month" and asked citizens to support the organization's humanitarian work.

Leopard Back in Its Cage

Here is the vicious leopard, which finally came home to its pit this morning after escaping from Oklahoma City's zoo, Saturday, causing panic among the Oklahomans in that vicinity, and causing a detachment of marine reserves, walkie-talkies, airplanes and two-way radio police cars to be brought into the big game hunt. Hunger finally drove the beast back to Lincoln Park zoo, the only home he had known since being captured from the jungles of India recently. Knockout drops placed in chunks of horse meat subdued the jungle cat long enough for a zoo keeper to slip a noose around his neck to assist in caging the leopard.

No Indication Of Defense in Dr. Fuchs' Case

Violation of Official Secret Acts Trial Opens Wednesday

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A corps of about 70 reporters, representing the world's press from both sides of the Iron Curtain, was allotted seats today for the trial of the brilliant German-born physicist who is accused of relaying precious atomic secrets to Russia.

The trial starts tomorrow.

There was no indication how the scientist, Dr. Klaus Emil Julius Fuchs, would plead to the two counts of violating the official secrets act. If he should plead guilty and call no defense witnesses, the proceedings might take only a few hours. British authorities have announced he confessed. A plea of innocence, however, might cause the trial to continue for some time.

The lord chief justice of England, Lord Goddard, is to hear the case. He is Britain's top criminal court judge.

The 38-year-old scientist, who lived what was called a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde life—as Britain's top atomic researcher and a funnel of British and American atomic secrets to Russia—will be tried in historic Old Bailey criminal court.

Officials who reported this said no meetings have been held for more than a month and British and Canadian experts have returned home.

The talks, which are of a preliminary nature, began last September and are aimed at a broad exchange of atomic secrets among the three countries.

Oklahoma City Zoo Keeper is Glad Last 3 Days Are Over

By Julian Frazier

(Zoo keeper at Lincoln park as told to Saul Feldman of the Associated Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—I'm glad these past three days are over.

I'm just beyond the thinking stage. My employees and I have gone without more than a couple of hours sleep since the leopard escaped.

This leopard hunt really is a little fantastic. The cat was in a strange land and the surroundings and people were strange to it.

It was very hard to predict just what this wild beast would do. We felt since he was sighted several miles away, he might be leaving the area. However, it was in the back of our mind that he could possibly come back to the zoo area.

Going on that chance, we put the sedative in the horse meat and planted it around the pit from which it escaped.

One Man Knows What He'd do if Hit by A-Bomb

DALLAS, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Sam Kirk, 49, can tell you exactly what he would do if an atomic bomb hits.

He would jump out of bed, smash a window screen, climb to the roof, and then jump off the roof.

That's exactly what happened last night when he dreamed of an atom bomb attack. Now Kirk is in a hospital, recovering from his dream, a shattered elbow and bruised hip.

Debris in Parks is Being Cleaned up

The branches which fell or were trimmed from 700 trees when they were being trimmed in Liberty, Hubbard and Washington parks are now in the process of being cleaned-up by the city.

All the debris, limbs, brush accumulated in the parks will be hauled out in trucks and burned. This work is expected to last a week or 10 days.

POW Checks Not Subject to Income Tax

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—War claims payments to former prisoners of war and certain civilian internees will be exempt from federal income taxes, the Internal Revenue Bureau ruled today.

The War Claims Commission expects to pay about $120,000,000 to 140,000 American beneficiaries and an unestimated amount to 100,000 Philippines ex POW's.

The first POW checks started through the mail on February 14. They are going out at the rate of 250 a week.

Earthquake in Japan
TOKYO, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A sharp earthquake was felt in a wide area of northern Japan tonight.

The Central Meteorological Observatory said the epicenter was on the northern coast of heavily populated Honshu Island.

No damage was reported immediately.

The tremor was felt as far south as Tokyo.

Creditors Ask Rice Farms Reorganize

John B. Gage of Kansas City is Named Trustee

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Five creditors of the Rice Leghorn Farms, Inc., Sedalia, have asked that the firm be reorganized under federal bankruptcy laws.

Judge Albert L. Reeves of the western district federal court of Kansas City, appointed former mayor John B. Gage of Kansas City as trustee of the hatchery, effective today, pending further hearings here in the involuntary bankruptcy case.

These creditors asked the court to superintend reorganization of the firm:

Sedalia Bank and Trust company, which said it holds a 5 per cent demand note for $7,500.

Sedalia Ice and Cold Storage company, allegedly holding statements for $855 in merchandise delivered to the firm.

Missouri Public Service corporation of Warrensburg, reportedly owed $4,720 for gas and electrical service.

Insurance agency company of St. Louis, demanding payment for $1,726 in insurance premiums.

Quaker Oats company of Chicago, allegedly owed $2,184.

Their petition said Rice Leghorn suffered a poor season last year and was not sufficiently capitalized to weather the business reverse.

Earlier this month the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation instituted a foreclosure sale against Rice, but it was not completed. The poultry company owes RFC $201,820 according to the bankruptcy petition.

Barn And Milk Shed Burned

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a large barn and milk shed on the farm of E. R. Knox, Smith-ton banker, located on route 5 east of Sedalia, about six miles.

The farm is rented and being worked by Harold Hill, who also resides on the farm.

The large barn had approximately 10 tons of hay in it, valued at about $200, two plows valued at about $500, and some smaller machinery and tools. The barn was about 36x60 feet and had a large loft.

Neoma Phillips, who was in the farm house taking care of the two Hill children, said when she first discovered the fire the barn seemed to be ablaze all over and went up in flames quickly. She called Mrs. Hill at the Bell Telephone office in Sedalia, and she in turn notified her husband, who was also in town getting a tractor.

Farmers and other workmen in the vicinity rushed to the fire but were unable to save the barn and hay. However, they did succeed in pulling some farm machinery out, before it was destroyed.

Mr. Knox said he carried insurance on the barn but that it would hardly cover the losses. He estimated his losses to the barn and milk shed at about $3,000.

Mr. Knox said the shed was modern and equipped for a Grade A Milk dairy barn.

Not a Chance In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A wild leopard, like the one which terrorized Oklahoma City apparently wouldn't have a chance in Arkansas.

A law, on Arkansas' statute books, says it is illegal for any wild animal such as a leopard or tiger to run free within the corporate limits of a city.

That was the word today from Arkansas Attorney General Lee Murry in answer to a question from J. E. Brazil, city attorney of Morrilton, Ark.

Murry wrote that any city or town has the authority to prevent by ordinance the "running at large of wild or domesticated animals" within the corporate limits.

Bradley Tries Out Sub
KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—General Omar Bradley went down in a submarine today for the first time in his long military career.

He plans to go up in a blimp tomorrow.

The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff made the crash dive during a combined business and vacation visit at the naval air station.

Both Hands Injured
HOUSTON, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Some time ago Guy Parks, 55, a farmer, lost all four fingers and part of the thumb on his left hand in a saw mill accident. Yesterday his other hand was caught in the same saw rig.

And the four fingers on his right hand were clipped off, right up against his hand.

Warm Weather In Prospect

By the Associated Press

Warmer weather appeared in prospect for most of the nation today, helping to save on the thinning cold supplies.

The Midwest, after a week of cold weather, got a batch of warm and moist air which spread from Texas and the west gulf area to Lake Superior. Thunder storms were reported in many sections, with hail in some parts of the wet belt. Temperatures generally headed above the freezing mark, although in some parts of Michigan and Wisconsin the rain fell in sub-freezing temperatures and some glazing was reported.

The coldest weather early today covered the middle and north Atlantic states. The mercury was below zero in northern New England and western New York. The cold belt extended southward as far as Charleston, S. C. The mercury hit 29 at Charleston; 19 at Richmond, Va.; 22 at Greensboro, N. C.; 28 at Columbia, S. C., and an even 32 at Norfolk, Va. It was 39 at Jacksonville, Fla., but near normal readings were reported over most of the rest of the south. A general warming up was forecast.

Fair weather was reported from the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast. Skies were clear throughout the western part of the country except for some showers in the central Rockies.

Improvement Program For Schools Opens

Work Has Begun at Smith-Cotton and Whittier Schools

The initial start of the $733,725.82 school improvement program for public schools in Sedalia was begun Monday at Smith-Cotton high school and Whittier grade school by the E. A. Brunson Construction Company of St. Louis, which has the contract to construct a cafeteria at Smith-Cotton, auditorium at Whittier, alterations at Broadway school and additions to Hubbard school.

This morning, a dragline digging machine, was being used on the job at Smith-Cotton for excavating tunnels in preparation for the laying of various pipes necessary to operate a cafeteria.

George F. Trost, superintendent of the Brunson Construction Company, said they expect to be ready to pour concrete footings about Thursday.

The superintendent said they started out with a skelton crew on both jobs, but in a couple of weeks, thought they would be using between 25 and 30 workers.

Started with Skelton Crew

The cafeteria will be constructed south of the Smith-Cotton building on the tennis court side, and the size will be approximately 114 feet by 108 feet. Inside this cafeteria building will be a large dining room, approximately 90 feet by 75 feet. The cafeteria will have an up-to-date kitchen and will be furnished with the best equipment, Mr. Trost said.

The cafeteria, which will be apart from the high school, will be a one-story brick structure. It will be covered with Lammella roof structure, and the floors will be of terrazzo, a mixture of cement and marble.

Mr. Trost said the contract calls for 12 months to finish the cafeteria, nine months at Whittier. If there are no delays in getting materials, he said they expected to step up in construction. He said they could not work on Broadway school until the school dismisses for the summer vacation.

The total contract price for the construction of the cafeteria is $121,256 and $108,188 for work at Whittier school.

Attlee Plans To Announce His Cabinet

Will Carry on the Government Despite His Thin Majority

By the Associated Press

Fire broke out under the ancient British House of Commons today on the eve of assembly of newly elected members. It was put out in 10 minutes. There was little damage.

While fire brigades rushed to action, Prime Minister Clement Attlee was preparing to announce his revamped cabinet. He informed King George VI last night that despite his slim majority won in last Thursday's election he would carry on the government.

Observers generally predicted the Labor government sooner or later would be forced to resign and new elections held. Press forecasts said the elections might come in June and not later than the autumn.

It was believed that to stay in power as a caretaker government, labor might have to shelve its nationalization program. This move would be forced by the powerful Conservative opposition. It would be unpopular with the left-wing Laborites, who might kick over the traces. Attlee will be walking a political tightrope.

First Real Test

The first real test will come in the debate on the speech from the throne which outlines government policy. The speech will be read by the king next Monday. If the Attlee government passes that test it next meets the budget debate. Conservatives won many votes in the last election by promising a cut in taxes. If the government does not cut taxes in accordance with the Conservatives wishes, it might very well fall on this challenge. The Conservatives would relish going to the country on such an issue because it is a major vote-getter.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, who managed Labor's election campaign told a meeting last night the new election may "come sooner rather than later."

He urged Laborites to keep the election machinery ready for use at any moment.

Chiang Back in Saddle

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is back in the saddle as president of Nationalist China. He "retired" as president and commander-in-chief of Nationalist forces over a year ago. He announced he is returning to both jobs.

He is replacing acting president Li Tsung-Jean who is recuperating in a New York hospital.

All that is left of Nationalist China now is the island of Formosa and some other islands off the Chinese coast. An invasion by Chinese Communists is imminent.

The Nationalists warned that all ships trading with the Communists are subject to air assault. Two American ships were bombed and strafed by unidentified planes suspected of being Nationalist yesterday. The bombs missed. One sailor was injured. Nationalists have declared a blockade of all Communist Chinese ports.

Three Children Killed in Collision

MONTICELLO, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Three children were reported killed today and at least nine others injured in the collision of a school bus and a freight train.

There were 32 youngsters on board the bus. The driver, Weldon Parent, 32 of Monticello, was shaken up.

The accident happened shortly before 8 a. m. at Sharp's Siding in this Aroostook county town half a dozen miles from the New Brunswick border. Bangor and Aroostook railroad officials said the bus hit the side of a snow-pile that was coupled on ahead of the engine.

Two of the dead were identified at Aroostook general hospital as Pamela Davis and Bonnie Flevelling, both about 12.

Back came this from Rear Admiral H. N. Wallin:

"Your interest in the navy and its problems is sincerely appreciated."

Admiral Wallin referred the matter to Rear Admiral Allen E. Smith, who directed the successful operation which nudged the Big Mo. off a sandbar in Hampton Roads.

Admiral Smith sent the younger diagrams of the operation and a letter saying the charts would give him "an understanding of the magnitude of the task involved."

Loren and his mother both were thrilled. "It amazed me that two busy admirals would take time to write a little boy," she commented.

5-Year-Old Boy Tells Navy How to Float a Battleship

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Just ask five-year-old Loren Devine how to float a battleship out of a mudbank—he'll tell you.

And it won't be just scuttlebutt, Mac, because he got the word straight from the bridge.

Now hear this:

Loren has fought many a toy-boat-in-a-dishpan battle himself. He knows what it is to have a ship out of commission. He was so worried about the grounding of the U. S. S. Missouri that he dictated this letter:

"Why can't you six the wreck on its bottom so it can sail again?" His mother, Mrs. Thomas B. Devine, forwarded it to naval authorities.

Another Epoch Comes to an End

By Al Daniel

PIEDMONT, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Another epoch in the saga of Jesse James, famed Missouri outlaw and reputed Robin Hood of the Ozarks, will close at 8 Wednesday morning when Missouri Pacific train 26, the Texan, moves over a new million and a half dollar grade reduction at Gads Hill, scene of the second train robbery in the world, back in 1874.

For the first time since the twin lines of steel reached the crest of the Ozarks divide between Black and St. Francis river in 1870, trains will cease to pass the point where the booted buccannars of the backwoods rifled mail bags, carried away the safe from the express car and terrified passengers of the southbound train as the flickering light of a blazing pile of crossies gave the scene the semblance of an inferno.

Optimist Club Hears Talk on Legislature

Wallace Cooper, Johnson County, Was Guest Speaker

The Optimist club, at the noon meeting today, was informed concerning the duties of the members of the general assembly of Missouri by Wallace Cooper, state representative from Johnson County. President Frank Mehl, after routine business reports of the club, turned the meeting over to Dan Doty, who in turn introduced his legislative colleague, Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Cooper stated that the 65th General Assembly of Missouri faced at the beginning of the session in excess of 750 proposed pieces of legislation. In order to meet the task that confronts it the legislature is divided into committees and the bills proposed are referred to the various committees. In order to get the work done, it is necessary for the legislature to convene during the day and work at night in the form of various committees.

Of the some 750 or more proposed bills the legislature only passed 114. However, Mr. Cooper stated that it was his opinion it is "more dangerous to pass a bad bill than to fail to pass a good one."

He also stated that he believes that the bi-cameral system is better than the uni-cameral system. It is easier for pressure groups to influence one house, but would be pretty hard for them to control both houses of a legislature.

One of the most helpful departments in Jefferson City at the present time, according to Mr. Cooper, is the legislative research department. This department helps put the bills in their final form for presentation to the two houses. Formerly, bills were presented by lobbyists in their original form and considerable time had to be spent in checking the bills to determine whether they are constitutional and conform to other laws of the state. The legislative research department serves as an aid to the general assembly in going over the proposed bills and also in preparing amendments that conform with the laws of the state and the constitution.

Rev. W. C. Bessemer and Carl Frank were presented to the club as newly elected members. Roger Fuller was also presented as a guest.

Section Crew's Car Collides With Train

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A railroad section crew's track car, carrying 10 men, collided head-on with a freight train here yesterday. One man was killed, two others were injured critically.

Seven workmen leaped to safety. George W. Brown, 60, failed to jump and was killed. Critically injured were Nathan Washington and George Stewart.

Start Work on New Sewer

Contractors R. J. Hasting and L. J. Stiers, both of St. Louis, who have the contract of the north side storm and sanitary sewer improvements, started preparations Monday for the future laying of new sewer in that district.

The present sewer located between the Missouri Pacific tracks and Pearl River was installed 60 or 70 years ago, and due to the increase in population, the pipes are too small to carry the sewage to the outfall.

The contractors are building a nine-foot horse shoe sewer at the present time, and will double the size of the sewer pipes. They expect to complete the job sometime this summer. Their bid on the contract was approximately $140,000.

W. J. Menefee Construction company of Sedalia has a small contract to clean and repair sewers in connection with the same project.

Strike Spreads Misery

Contempt Case End Appears Close; Nothing to Raise Hope to End Strike

By Norman Walker

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A quick wind up of the government's contempt case against the coal miners union was indicated today when Justice Department lawyers said they had only "about four or five more witnesses."

The attorneys gave out this word shortly before reconvening of the trial (at 1:30 p. m. EST) before Federal Judge Richmond B. Keach.

There was no indication from attorneys for the United Mine Workers as to how long they might want to make their defense.

Developments outside the court room contained nothing to raise hopes for an end to the strike and a halt to the spread of misery from the coal famine.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The soft coal strike hammered mercilessly at the national economy today with steel plants laying off additional thousands.

The total idle in the three-week full scale walkout now is well past the half million mark. That includes 372,000 coal miners and 184,000 in other industries.

Rebellious diggers show no signs of weakening in their determined stand against working without a contract.

An estimated 40,000 workers in the Birmingham area are reported unemployed, mostly as a result of coal shortages.

Resumption of the contempt trial was delayed until afternoon so that Judge Keach could hear arguments in chambers on the question of whether to admit evidence about the two previous convictions—in 1946 and 1948—of the union on charges of contempt for ignoring a court's back-to-work order.

Welly K. Hopkins, UMW attorney, filed a brief arguing that evidence about the past convictions had no place in the present trial.

Some members of Congress still were talking of possible government seizure of the mines, but there was no indication the White House is taking this idea.

Top Politicos Figure on Farmers' Revolt

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—A slow fire burning across the Midwest prairies will stir the biggest rum-pus in the 81st Congress and decide the 1950 elections. This is the opinion of ranking politicians on both sides of the aisle.

The fire is a rank-and-file farmers' revolt against the sliding scale of parity payments which was jammed through Congress by the powerful Farm Bureau Federation plus a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Signs of the revolt are:

No. 1—A poll among Iowa hog farmers taken by Wallace's Farmer, which revealed 45 per cent favor the Brannan plan of direct government payments to farmers, while letting fall the prices to the consumer. Thirty-five per cent are back of the present system of the government buying and storing surpluses to keep prices up. The remainder did not decide. This is a gain of 11 per cent in eight months for the Brannan idea.

Commented one hog farmer, "let the price drop. Maybe some poor folks could have a little meat—especially children. Let's not store pork and have it wasted."

This poll was taken in the home state of Allan Kline, Farm Bureau president, who is bitterly fighting the Brannan plan. Kline boasts "when an Iowa hog sees me, he curls his tail."

Sign No. 2—In North Dakota, Sen. Bill Langer and the non-partisan league, are preparing to leave the Republican party in favor of the Brannan plan. A major farm authority in the Dakotas, editor William Ronald of Mitchell, S. D., has been frantically urging the GOP leadership to write a new farm policy.

Sign No. 3—A grass-roots farmers' meeting in Crawford county, Wis., recently turned into a debate on the Brannan plan. Before the debate, 75 were for the plan, 45 against, and 92 didn't know. After the debate, 103 voted pro, 45 against, and 47 still undecided.

Sign No. 4—Democratic women at the Jefferson-Jackson dinner reported that the question they most wanted data on was the Brannan plan. Its author, Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan, got more applause than anyone at the $100-a-plate dinner except Truman.

Sign No. 5—Chairman Harold Cooley of the House Agriculture committee, noticeably unenthusiastic about the Brannan plan last year, recently told the Farm Bureau of North Carolina, his home state: "Either come up with something better than the Brannan plan, or stop standing in the way." Gov. Kerr Scott of N.C., a former state commissioner of agriculture, is on record for the plan.

Fear Income Drop

Back of the farm revolt is an estimated drop of five to six billion dollars in farm income, the fear that farmers' income will drop further under the sliding-scale formula backed by the Farm Bureau, and mounting criticism of piled-up surpluses while food prices remain high in the grocery stores.

Here are some comparisons in surplus food costs: In a Washington suburb one school is using free surplus butter to cook with, while the price in the grocery is 77 cents a pound. Surplus potatoes are being sold by the government at 1 cent per 100 pounds, while selling at retail 10 pounds for 45 cents. Surplus dried eggs are given away to any credited welfare agency which will haul them away in 150-pound barrels or the equivalent of 450 dozen eggs. Eggs are selling in Washington stores at 47 cents a dozen.

Radioactive Congressman

Able Congressman Henry M. Jackson of Washington had a nerve-racking experience recently when he visited the Hanford, Wash. atomic energy plant.

As he left the project, Jackson was placed in front of a machine for a routine examination to determine whether he had picked up any radiation poisoning during his visit. Jackson's left hand showed no reaction, but when he placed his right hand under the machine the radioactivity counter skyrocketed. Security officials, immediately fearful, were ready to rush the Congressman to the hospital for blood plasma—the only treatment known for radiation poisoning. But when he stripped to the waist, they heaved a sigh of relief. What had set the radioactivity counter off so violently was only the radium dial on Jackson's watch.

Capital News Capsules

GETTING TOUGH WITH NAZIS—Inside story on American High Commissioner McCloy's tough-talking speech to the Germans is that Secretary Acheson chided him for being too namby-pamby with the Germans, insisted that he make a public statement saying the United States was aware of the threat of revived Nazism. McCloy wasn't enthusiastic but consented to have the State Department write his speech, which incidentally is considered the best thing the United States has done in Germany since the war ended.

AIR COMPETITION—Two small, unscheduled airlines have offered to fly the mails for one dollar a year—to prove that government subsidies aren't necessary. Golden North Airways and Air Transport Associates claim they can fly the Alaskan run for the post office and still make enough money from commercial freight to give the government free service.

This would save the taxpayers more than $7,000,000 a year.

TIGHTER DRAW CURTAIN—Another blow to good will between East and West: The Czechoslovak government has issued an edict requiring anyone writing to a person abroad to take the letter personally to the post office along with his identification card. The letter cannot be mailed unless the sender reveals his identity.

COMMUNISTS TO ITALY—The American embassy in Moscow reports that the Russian government is releasing 120,000 Italian war prisoners in a spectacular move to bolster the strength of the Communist party in Italy. All of them have been carefully indoctrinated in Communist schools in Russia and are fanatics. Ten thousand of them have been trained in the Russian demolition and street-fighting school in Kiev.

CHIANG'S STRATEGY—Secret intelligence reports reveal that Chiang Kai-Shek is deliberately using American bombs and airplanes to destroy American property in Communist-held China. In addition, Chiang hopes that by using American planes to kill Chinese civilians, he will incite the Chinese against the Americans and thus broaden the gulf leading to United States recognition. First indication that Chiang's tactics are working came when the Chinese Communists retaliated against the 34 American men, women and children who have been stranded in Shanghai for the past eight months.

Gas Tycoon Kerr's Proposals Could Hike Natural Gas Price

By Peter Edson

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Richest U. S. senator is said to be Democrat Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma. He was born in a log cabin, rose to become his state's first native-born governor and its Democratic national committeeman. He was a keynoter at the 1944 Democratic National Convention in Chicago and a vice-presidential possibility until President Roosevelt gave the nod to Harry S. Truman.

Senator Kerr's fortune has been rated at $10,000,000—all of it made in the last 25 years and most of it made in the oil and gas business of the southwest. In spite of his wealth, Senator Kerr has been considered a New Dealer.

All this lends more than usual interest to Senator Kerr's sponsorship of amendments to the Natural Gas Act of 1938, now before Congress. His principal amendment would remove from rate-fixing regulation of the Federal Power Commission all "independent" natural gas producers, if they sell "at arm's length" to interstate pipelines and distributing companies, and if they don't sell direct to consumers.

Eighty per cent of all U. S. natural gas is now produced by companies which would qualify as regulation-exempt "independents" under the Kerr amendments.

Asserting that the real purpose of these amendments is to "triple the price of natural gas in most parts of the United States, Charles H. Rhyne, Washington representative of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, estimates that if the Kerr amendments become law, "the total increase in dollars paid by consumers will amount to more than $200,000,000 a year on a nation-wide basis."

Rhyne says further that, "The Kerr bill is certain to increase the price of natural gas by more than five cents per thousand cubic feet (wholesale) and this increase assures Kerr of at least $50,000,000 in profits before taxes." He bases this figure on an estimate that the present value of the 900 billion cubic feet of natural gas reserves now held by the Kerr-McGee Oil Producing Co., Inc., of which the senator is president, is $100,000,000.

Main arguments for passage of the Kerr amendments are that they would clear up the law and free independent natural gas producers from bureaucratic controls of the Federal Power Commission. The situation within the FPC is a story in itself. But for the present it is enough to note that natural gas producers are reluctant to sell gas from their wells because of their fear of FPC rate regulation.

In opposition to these claims, municipal officials point out that the building of natural gas pipelines from the southwest to the mid-west, to New York and Boston, and to California, has enabled all producers to sell gas at prices which yield them substantial profit. Now that these cities are dependent on natural gas, it is claimed that the producers want to jack up the price. And in this battle, there is nobody to protect the consumers' interests.

Evidence for this argument is cited in the case of Detroit. Since 1945, the "independent" Phillips Petroleum Co. has tripled the price on gas it sells to the pipeline and distributing companies serving Detroit. Proposals for proportionate rate increases to Detroit consumers are now before Federal Power Commission. Mr. Rhyne estimates that if FPC can take jurisdiction over the Detroit case, price increases can be cut down one half.

The relationship between Senator Kerr and Phillips Petroleum is not without interest. Phillips first hired Kerr, then a lawyer and smalltime drilling contractor to win Oklahoma City approval to drill wells in the city limits. After successfully conducting this campaign in city elections, Kerr got contracts to drill wells for Phillips.

Kerr's partner in Kerr-McGee is D. H. McGee, former chief geologist for Phillips. Standard Statistics reports that in 1948 Kerr-McGee had an interest in 521 producing oil wells and 74 gas wells.

Moody's Financial Manual puts Kerr-McGee revenues for 1948 at $12,538,958 and net profit at $1,366,464. Yet Kerr-McGee is tiny compared to Phillips, which is rated the largest natural gas producer in the country, with reserves of 15 trillion cubic feet. A five-cent-per-thousand price increase on this would be worth $750,000,000.

Kerr-McGee alone, and in partnership with Phillips, sell natural gas to five interstate pipeline distributors, according to Federal Power Commission records. The two companies are also associated in developing Gulf of Mexico tidelands leases off Louisiana.

"Oil and Gas Journal" is authority that the combined Kerr-McGee-Phillips 45 leases cover nearly 170,000 acres. Their first two tidelands producing wells, put down jointly with Standard Oil and Gas, 85 miles southwest of New Orleans, tapped a 200-million-barrel oil reserve.

This brief summary of holdings indicates Senator Kerr's personal interest in the Natural Gas Act amendments he is proposing.

HOW NOT TO DEAL WITH RESENTMENTS

We have seen how disruptive resentments and hate are to the total person. If we are to live abundantly, we must get rid of them at all costs. But how?

First of all, we must look at some of the ways we are not to use in getting rid of our hates and resentments. (1) We must not suppress them into forgetfulness and try to act as though we no longer have them. This treatment drives them only into the subconscious mind where they work as unconscious resentments. There they will produce conflict and disturbance, the person scarcely knowing what is causing the upset. He will be under nervous strain and will probably lay his upset to all sorts of causes—everything except the real cause. To suppress the resentments does not get rid of them, for then they simply work their havoc at deeper and more dangerous levels. No one can play tricks on life and escape the consequences. He must bring the resentments to the surface and face them honestly, with no subterfuges, no evasions, no suppressions. He must not push his resentments down into the subconscious mind.

(2) If we avoid suppression, we must not try the contrary method—that of expressing our hatreds and resentments. Some psychiatrists prescribe this way, lest suppression set up a complex in the subconscious; and there is no doubt that we can get temporary relief by giving the other person "a piece of our mind."

A young lady who had been tense and frustrated came away from a telephone quite relieved and elated after having just told someone just what she thought of him. Her outburst did relieve dammed-up resentments. A woman who had pains, first at the base of her spine, then in the middle of her back, and then between her shoulder blades, was asked by her doctor what it was that was bothering her inwardly. To which question she blurted out, "Well, I think I'd be well if I could tell my husband just once to go to—" Perhaps she would have been relieved momentarily, but the resentments would fill up again and be ready for another spill-over. No; expression is not the remedy—it is merely dealing with a symptom instead of with the disease.

O God, my heavenly Father, I am dealing with something too devastating to try to heal it lightly or to temporize. Help me to go to the roots and find release there. But I will need more than Thy help—I will need Thy grace. Help me to take Thy grace for this task. Amen.

Don't Try to Force College Education on Your Daughter

"Our daughter, who finishes high school in June, is determined to go to work instead of going to college as her father and I have planned for her to do for years.

"Above all else, we want to give her a college education. But she isn't the least bit interested."

A distressed parent wrote the above to me. I can understand your bitter disappointment, of course. And the saddest part of it is that your daughter may one day regret not taking advantage of the opportunity you are offering her. But you can't just "give" a college education to your daughter.

If you've failed in all your efforts to make her see than an opportunity to get a good education is the best gift you can give her, then trying to force her to take the gift won't do much good.

For the final showdown, she has to educate herself. If she's just plain not interested in doing that, you can't force it.

Sell Her On Some Kind Of Training

But, since she is interested in getting a job, you ought to be able to sell her on the idea of going to business college and fitting herself for business competition.

She'll quickly find out that without any business training the jobs she can get are few and far between and that her chances of going ahead are pretty slim.

If you can get her to finish a business course you will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you have given her some security for the future.

Above all, don't feel that you have failed because your daughter refuses to fall in with the plans you have made for her. That is a risk all parents take when they plan ahead for their children.

However wise their planning, no parents can ever count on their children to fulfill the roles that have been laid out for them. But even when the children refuse to co-operate it may work out for the best. For children are sometimes more realistic than their parents about their own aptitudes and abilities.

All characters and events in this story are fictitious and any resemblance to real characters or real events is purely coincidental.

"WHAT happened?" Nadine Fennell bubbled and bubbled when she came up from the depths of the pool where she had been writhing underwater like a very lengthy mermaid.

She shot up from the depths and, twisting in air, flounced her wet seat on the tiles alongside where Azalea Palmer was crouched. She went on:

"When I dived in, Paul Moody was standing here by you. When I came up for air, he's vanished. Did I scare him off?"

Azalea did not answer. Nadine went on.

"I was eliminated from the semifinals and I bolted. But what goes on here? Have you two quarreled?"

Two girls could hardly have been found more unlike in every way. That was perhaps why they were such friends. Azalea was petite and old-fashioned in her beauty, and rich and unhappy. Nadine was comparatively poor, a career girl, studying and practicing professional modeling for fashion shows, with success and ambition.

Nadine was of the most modern architecture. She belonged to the generation of girls that seems to have gone to legs. She had a small head, small features full of audacity and shockproof sophistication. She had the square shoulders of an athlete, small unmotherly breasts, no belly, no hips, then a stretch of legs that her young brother compared to chewing gum stretched to its limit.

They were elegant legs in outline, but so long that she seemed almost to walk on stilts, especially when she went on tiptoes in her toeless shoes with their dagger-high heels stabbing the ground under her long, long skirts. She was what the radio commentators call "the big economy size."

Azalea was small for nowadays, a warmly tinted replica of the Venus of Medici. She was an armful, not an armload. She could cuddle in the lap of a boy friend, instead of sticking out as Nadine did in both directions from his embraces.

Azalea was faultless in her gentle and delicate outlines. In fact, Paul Moody—who, like that other sculptor Michelangelo, was a bit of a poet—Paul Moody had called her "perfect as a sonnet."

THE young sculptor Paul Moody did not specify exactly what her 14 lines were; but they were all just the right length; and they rhymed in the right places. In profile she was a cameo. Her head belonged on a medallion and Paul had made one of her.

Her hair was of so ashen a hue that one might have said it looked as if it had been frightened white in her youth. When Azalea was old, people would say she was still blonde.

In the terra cotta of Paul Moody's bas-relief her hair had almost its natural color. As she sat on the rim of the pool, her entire profile was bewitchingly lovely.

"He was going to have a heart-to-heart talk with my father," Azalea said. "Heaven only knows what might happen."

Her cheek was on one upflitted knee and the curve of her back was an arch of beauty. She was a melody in flesh.

But now her enchanting symmetry portrayed complete unhappiness.

Nadine was mystified. Never before in all their friendship had she seen Azalea Palmer so clenched and crushed. She said:

"What's the matter, baby?" "Oh, nothing, nothing!" Azalea answered as one does when "nothing" means "everything."

A bit mollified by the rebuff, Nadine bridled:

"You mean it's none of my business?"

Azalea shook her woeful head inconspicuously.

Nadine was one of those innumerable people who curiously believe that the best way to console people in distress is to belittle their grief and scold them out of it. Nadine had an averagely good heart and was deeply fond of Azalea; but she clung to the ancient idiom that wealthy people should be immune to sorrow.

So she scolded:

"Really, honey, you'd better see a psychiatrist. You haven't been happy for months. And look at what you've got! Why, if I had your youth and beauty, and wealth—my God, I'd call myself the luckiest woman on earth. What have you got to pout about? You ought to be happy. You've no right to be blue."

"THAT'S funny! That's screamingly funny!" And Azalea almost smiled when she said it. "Be happy because you ought to be! That's good! That's great! Be happy because you're rich. But what can money buy? My father says my money—or the prospect of it—has brought me a suitor that loves my money, not me. So my father is determined to save me from my happiness. And all with the best intentions. Good Lord, I think good intentions ruin more homes than rum.

Social Events

Starting with a quotation: "The world is so full of a number of things—I am sure we should all be as happy as kings" Mrs. H. U. Campbell, speaking before Sorosis Monday afternoon on the subject: "Interesting People I have met" stated she thought that might be what is wrong with us today. The gaining of things leads to an endless chase after happiness and peace. The world is filled with things, she said, until we don't really know what we want. She likened it to an over crowded store window in which are so many things that you can't see anything particular in the window that looks worth while.

Things really mean very little, Mrs. Campbell said, it is the people that really make life and those who know the most people are the richest. Shakespeare wrote that life is a stage and we, the players walk across it, the speaker said, and she told of the important part played by women.

Know What They Want

Women, she said, know what they want and go after it. You can't defeat a man whose wife has courage and stated that with men having the same training and same opportunities one may go farther than the other because he has a wife with courage although she may not be an outstanding person in some minds. A woman must have a sense of humor, the speaker said, and told of the woman who said her husband would buy her a fur coat or anything in the world she wanted but he wouldn't pass her the salt at the table. Another woman realized that having the table set had a wonderful effect on her husband and she always managed to get the table set even if dinner was a long way from being ready. Happiness, Mrs. Campbell pointed out, is a great beautifier—it makes you pretty. You should think lovely things, she said, be full of love, use beauty aids and this she insisted you should do because other people have to look at you—and if you have no inward beauty you are just sunk.

Mrs. Campbell selected several women as interesting people she had known. The first was Mary, a short little woman with a sweet smile born in 1830 in Kentucky. She came to Missouri and lived at Georgetown before Sedalia was started. Mary, she said had so many sayings and superstitions such as bad luck to cut your fingernails on Friday or to sweep the floor after dark. The latter, Mrs. Campbell said she agreed on, if she hadn't got her floor swept by dark she thought it would be just as well to let it go. Mary, she said always wore aprons, her dress up aprons being white with lace trim. She was very clean and when there was illness anywhere she always had a drawer of clean garments and clean bandages and Mary turned nurse. She later lived in a red brick house in Windsor built the last year of the Civil war and there still it stands surrounded by trees and flowers just as she had them then.

Another Type

Another woman Mrs. Campbell told of was Onetta, who was born in Wales later coming to Minnesota, and there guarded her home from the Indians. She was married at 15 and gave birth to 11 children, rearing only four of them. Her home was furnished with early American furniture and on the floors were rag carpets laid over two inches of soft straw. She was a progressive woman, Mrs. Campbell said, and then added "Mary and Onetta were my grandmothers."

In telling of her grandmothers and their way of life Mrs. Campbell reminded her audience that those busy women who had few things found so much time for gracious living—a charm which we of today seem to have lost. Most women, she said, are good—but good for what—selfish living and daily amusements. Even grandmothers of today don't have time to be baby sitters and when parents go out they have to get a baby sitter and pay them, she said, "Who used to do the baby sittin?" she asked Did your parents ever have a baby sitter for you? and then she went on to tell how the parents today wanted to go out evenings and somebody had to stay with the children. Mrs. Campbell said that she often received calls from children asking if she knew where their daddy and mommy were—sometimes they said it was homework, but Mrs. Campbell, knowing children, knows that it is lonesomeness.

There are many people in mental institutions today, Mrs. Campbell said, and ventured the thought that it might be caused from too many things. When the first youth is gone and you reach 30 it seems terrible, then 40 and when you're 50 it just breaks your heart, she said, you overeat, over rush, get restless and unhappy and want to go places, but the years shouldn't make you unhappy, she said, there are many people who do their greatest work after 50 because then they have more time. But, she said, it is not the things you do but the life you lived—and it may be later than you think. It may be time to light the fires, perhaps the spiritual fires, the speaker said, and then added, "I do not know about your life, I am too busy looking after myself. I am not sure of my own."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Philip M. McLaughlin and Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman presided over the meeting.

You Can Figure Out the Odds on Having Children of All One Sex in Your Family

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D. Written for NEA Service

People often wonder why three or four or even more children in one family are all boys or all girls. Here is a question on that subject:

Q—I have five children, all girls. What are the chances that the next child would be a boy?

P. R. W.

A—About half of all children born are boys and about half are girls. All of the evidence which we have indicate that the sex is determined at the time of fertilization. These two factors mean that there is a 50/50 chance that the next child would be another girl.

The possibilities of having all boys or all girls are interesting. If there are three children in the family, the chances are that they will all be of one sex in one family out of eight. If there are nine children in a family, there is only one chance in 512 that they will all be of the same sex. The 50/50 sex ratio for each birth merely makes it necessary to calculate mathematically the chances for families of various sizes having children all of one sex.

Q—Does a person with premature gray hair tend to develop grayness more rapidly during pregnancy and what could be done for it?

A—I have never heard any scientific reason why the hair should gray more rapidly during pregnancy, and I doubt that it happens often. If it does, I know of nothing that can be done about it.

Q—Is there a cure for bad breath caused by food not digesting properly?

A—The most common causes for bad breath are conditions in the mouth itself, such as pyorrhea or excessive smoking. Some foods, such as onions or garlic, produce an unpleasant odor to the breath because they are eliminated through the lungs. This does not mean, however, that such foods are not digesting properly.

Q—What I can't understand is why after eating I get heart palpitations. My heart has been checked and I have been told it is all right.

A—It is possible that you are merely conscious of your heart after eating. This happens quite often, particularly to nervous people. It is also possible that you are getting "extra systoles," which are extra beats of the heart. Many people have these extra beats but they do not ordinarily mean that heart disease or anything serious is present.

Q—Please discuss Paget's disease.

A—Unfortunately, there are two kinds of Paget's disease... one of the breast and the other of the bone. They are entirely unrelated except for carrying the same name.

Q—I was told I have sciatic neuritis. I'm 30 years old. At times I can hardly walk. Will you please tell me if this is dangerous or not?

A—A nerve runs down the back of the legs, called the sciatic nerve. A number of conditions can cause pain in the area to which this nerve runs, and this is called sciatic. Pure sciatic neuritis is inflammation of the nerve itself. This can come from a variety of causes which have to be tracked down in each individual case. The condition is always painful and while not dangerous to life, it can and often is crippling and distressing.

Q—For what ailments would a doctor prescribe port wine for a patient?

A—Port wine has probably been prescribed for centuries as a sort of tonic for those convalescing from disease or operation. Its value is somewhat uncertain, and some doctors prescribe it and some do not. It is not specific for any one disease.

Dr. Jordan is unable to answer directly individual questions from readers. However, once a week in this "Q and A" column he will answer the most interesting and the most frequently asked questions received during the week.

Minus Scores Are a Possibility

By William E. McKenney America's Card Authority Written for NEA Service

Here is a question from one of my readers which asks if you can put your opponent in the red. My answer should give you a good tip on how to do just that.

Q—An odd situation came up the other night. It was the first hand of the evening. Our opponents had drawn a red trey and put it down on the table, but before they could make an initial meld, we went out. The opponents had a total of 260 points in their combined hands; so I said they were minus 260 plus 100 for the red trey they had on the table, or a total minus score of 360 points.

The opponents claimed that this was ridiculous. They said you could not be minus in Canasta—in other words, you could not take away points that they did not have. They pointed out that the score sheets have spaces for basic meld and total scores, but no place for a minus score. Who was correct?

A. You were correct. Tell your friends to look at law 15 in the Official Canasta Laws of the National Canasta Laws Commission. They will find that we consider a minus score even for initial melds. This law states that with a minus score, the points needed for an initial meld are zero. The lowest point requirement for an initial meld is 50 and that applies when the score is 0 to 1495.

One of the real thrills of the game is to catch the opponents with two or three red treys on the table. This often happens when they need 120 for their initial meld, and they are then minus not only the value of the cards in their hands, but minus also 100

50-Year Treaty Signed Monday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(AP)—The United States and Canada signed Monday a new 50-year treaty to safeguard the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and increase power output of the Niagara river.

The agreement calls for fixed minimum flow of water at all seasons and for engineering measures to prevent the coastline from breaking away and flattening out the falls, and to distribute the flow of water evenly.

All remaining water may be diverted for power purposes and shared equally between the two countries. Placing the diversion on a permanent legal foundation is calculated to permit the "long overdue redevelopment of the power potential of the river" and the generation of "far more energy" at the falls than now. Canada currently used more of such water than this country, officials said.

Husband Tells Story of Wife's Last Illness

States Doctor Was Kind, Treated Her Like a Mother

By Henry L. Supple

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 28.—(P)—The husband of Mrs. Abbie Borroto said today his dying wife was treated like a mother by Dr. Hermann N. Sander.

The 41-year-old Dr. Sander is on trial on a first degree murder charge — accused of ending the woman's cancer-tortured life with an air injection into her veins.

Reginald Borroto, the 65-year-old husband, testified as to his wife's last illness.

"If Mrs. Borroto had been Dr. Sander's mother or sister he could not have done more to minister to her."

Borroto, a retired oil salesman, said Dr. Sander came often to his home during the last months of his wife's life.

Borroto added that the doctor often appeared voluntarily, bringing such gifts to the ailing woman as a canary, complete with cage, and other little offerings to take her mind off her misery.

Called Often

Dr. Sander called at all hours of the day, Borroto said, and sometimes as late as 10 o'clock at night.

Under cross-examination, Borroto said:

"On various occasions, Dr. Sander appeared very tired. In fact, on one occasion I told him he was a fool spending so much time working on committees outside of his office hours."

On taking the stand, Borroto was asked by Phinney:

"Was Mrs. Borroto a woman of determination?"

"Definitely," replied the slender widower.

Q. Did she have the will to live?

A. Very much so.

Kindly Feeling

Later, Borroto testified "if he (Dr. Sander) was my own brother I couldn't feel more kindly toward him."

The dead woman's husband made this comment after defense lawyer Ralph Langdell asked him whether he was friendly with the accused doctor and whether he had been to the Sander home for dinner.

Telling the story of his wife's illness, Borroto said Dr. Sander thought it best she go to the hospital.

On the night of Dec. 3 — the night before Mrs. Borroto died — her husband said Dr. Sander telephoned him and said he did not expect her to live through the night.

Borroto said the doctor told him she had lost the power of speech — "that she could whisper but I couldn't understand her."

Held Her Hand

"I sat at her bedside and held her hand," Borroto said.

Borroto said his 19-year-old daughter, Elise, stayed with some friends that night "because I did not want her to be alone."

"After you learned of your wife's death did you return to the hospital?" Langdell asked.

"No sir," he replied.

Q. On Dec. 29 when Dr. Sander was arrested were you in Manchester?

A. Yes, I was.

When Borroto told the witness stand he looked in Dr. Sander's direction as he walked from the courtroom.

Chief defense counsel Louis E. Wyman then called for further cross-examination of Miss Elizabeth Rose, 24, the nurse who has testified she saw Dr. Sander inject air into Mrs. Borroto's veins.

Had Prior Operation

Borroto, testified that before his wife was stricken with cancer she had undergone a thyroid operation.

He said it was after this operation that he met Dr. Sander, who had been an associate of the operating surgeon.

Borroto, a slight man wearing glasses, spoke softly but distinctly as he told the judge and jury

MOSCOW, Feb. 28.—(P)—The Soviet Union in sweeping price reductions tonight set a new rate for the ruble—four rubles to the dollar instead of 5.30.

At the same time it revalued the ruble in gold and foreign currencies.

"The currency reform in the U.S.S.R. carried out in December, 1947, liquidated the consequences of the second world war in the field of currency circulation and re-established the full value of the Soviet ruble," the decree said.

"The abolition of the ration system which was carried out at the same time as currency reform and important lowering of prices for goods of mass consumption, which was carried out three times from 1947 to 1950, led to still further strengthening of the ruble, to an increase of its buying power and to an increase of its rate in relation to foreign currency."

"At the same time in Western countries there took place and is continuing to take place the loss of value of currencies."

The price cuts will be effective tomorrow.

Typical price cuts cited in percentages were:

Beef 24, flour 25, beer 30, potatoes 10, cotton textiles 15, woolen textiles 12, butter 30, cheese 20, black caviar 30, chocolate sweets 20, cognac 25, salt, 40, dessert wines 49.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(P)—Secretary of State Acheson told senators today "I would never knowingly tolerate any disloyal person in the department of state."

FRANK FURT, Germany, Feb. 28.—(P)—The United States challenged Russia today to agree to elections throughout all Germany, possibly Oct. 15, on the basis of free balloting.

Oct. 15 is the date the Russians have set for an election in the Soviet-sponsored East German peoples' republic.

The proposal was made by the U.S. high commissioner, John J. McCloy. But he indicated the United States would take no initiative in organizing such an election.

his wife's normal weight was about 140 pounds before she began to waste.

Previous testimony indicated that shortly before her death she weighed less than half that amount.

Asks Court To Reconsider

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—(P)—Pioneer News Service a St. Louis Horse Racing News company, asked the Missouri Supreme Court today to reconsider whether a circuit judge has a right to enter its case.

Two weeks ago the state's highest court said Circuit Judge James F. Nangle of St. Louis had no jurisdiction in Pioneer's three-year-old fight to supply quick horse race news.

The attorney for Pioneer, Morris A. Shenker, said in his plea for a new hearing that the court made some errors in its decision.

He argued that Judge Nangle was merely upholding the ruling of the State Public Service Commission in the long drawn out case. And besides, Shenker contended, the high court's recent decision was in conflict with one of its own earlier rulings.

Pioneer had sued Southwestern Bell Telephone company a year ago in Judge Nangle's court, asking $100,000 damages and permanent continuance of its telephone connections.

Dean J. B. Kenyon said last night's attendance was the largest he ever had seen on the campus. Every seat was taken. Aisles and lobbies were jammed. Those who couldn't get into the chapel stood outside awaiting their turn.

Wilmore residents predominated at the session.

Captain Takes

Responsibility

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 28.—(P)—Capt. William D. Brown, commanding officer of the battleship Missouri, said today "I and I alone bear the sole responsibility" for her grounding last month.

"As captain of the ship, it was my duty to keep her safe and secure. I didn't do it," the 47-year-old officer told a naval court of inquiry.

This dramatic reversal of Brown's previous defense tactics came as the court opened its 18th day of sessions designed to fix responsibility for the grounding which occurred in Chesapeake Bay, January 17.

When Brown took the stand in his own defense February 18 and February 20 he testified his "team of officers" fell down when he "needed it most" January 17, and he felt "utterly alone as far as assistance from my team of officers was concerned."

Today, he stood tall and straight before the court and reading from a prepared statement said:

"I feel, and I feel it strongly, that despite all of the numerous shortcomings of others which have been revealed in this courtroom, I could have, and should have, kept the ship in deep water."

CHIC

By Dewitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The British electorate's action in slaying the big labor (Socialist) parliamentary majority to a mere whisper means, I take it, that England found herself too far to the left politically and moved to readjust the situation.

The country — normally a bit "left of center" — has made an effort to swing back to her old position. This move obviously involves a rebuke to the Socialist government by some voters who felt it had overreached its mandate in carrying out its program.

The electorate's purpose was emphasized by the smashing defeat dealt out to the Communist and left-wing labor independents. The Communists put 100 candidates into the field, including their two Red members of Commons, and every mother's son of them was defeated. The same thing happened to all five left-wing labor independents who had fought the regular party program by advocating closed relations with Russia.

Majority Too Small

However, in the energetic process of readjustment the electorate has produced an indecisive result so far as concerns the position in parliament. The Socialist government's majority of ten votes overall is neither fish, fowl nor good Red meat. It's far too small for security.

A few cases of illness simultaneously, or absence of labor members on government business, could lay the party open to defeat on some measure. As Conservative leader Winston Churchill put it:

"It's obvious that parliament is going to be in a very unstable condition."

And over in West Germany chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who commands a parliamentary coalition with a majority of only one, remarked:

"I would not like to be a minister with this (British Socialist) majority. It might be a very wobbly chair."

To "Carry On"

"Wobbly" is right, but prime minister Clement Attlee and his supporters have decided that the best thing to do is to "carry on" for the time being. The alternative would be the holding of another general election right away, which would put the country under a heavy strain.

So as things now stand, Attlee will accept the mandate and go ahead until fate overtakes him. That will call for the treading of a straight and narrow path and the avoidance of highly controversial legislation.

This parliamentary situation is a particularly unhappy one, coming as it does when the government is faced with far-reaching decisions as regards both home and foreign affairs. Paramount is the fierce economic crisis in which England is involved. Coupled with this is the fact that she is a key figure in the western leadership of the cold war. This is found to cause concern in the capitals of all the western democracies.

Situation is Delicate

Because of the great delicacy of this situation, informed officials in London say they expect that the Conservatives and the Socialists will make an informal agreement to keep major questions of foreign policy outside their warfare. As a matter of fact, there has been a large degree of bipartisanship in the handling of important foreign affairs ever since the Socialists took over from the Conservatives in 1945.

Parliament will Reassemble on March 6

When King George will deliver the speech from the throne, outlining the government's program. The first major issue, so far as one can foresee, will be the budget which is due to be introduced in April. This might easily produce a battle, involving as it does a vast expenditure, of which one-fifth has been going for defense.

A Major Issue

Whether the government will dare raise the question of further nationalization of industry is much in doubt at this writing, since it is one of the most controversial items on the Socialist program. Nationalization of the great iron and steel industry is foremost in this category. Legislation already has been enacted for this but it still has to be made effective. One would expect the Conservatives to make a major issue of that.

In any event, political prophets cannot see a protracted life for the new government. They expect a fresh election before long.

Bring Back Heart Action

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26—(P)—A gentle massage restored action to the heart of a seven-year-old boy after it had stopped beating for half a minute during a delicate operation here.

HOW MUCH IS ONE RESCUE WORTH?

A tiny hand above the water. Then slowly, slowly it sinks. But there is time—still time—if only someone is near, someone who knows what to do. A twelve-year-old boy, a woman, an old man—anyone, if only he knows.

And the wonderful thing is that there are millions who do know what to do and how to do it. Last year alone, you—through your Red Cross—made it possible to train more than a half-million people in water safety. Another 56,600 were authorized as instructors in water safety and first aid. It is estimated that 18,000,000 have had training in first aid and water safety through your Red Cross.

Many of these people are able to save human life—priceless human life. How much is this ability worth? It's hard to say—unless it is someone you love who has been rescued.

Your contributions to your Red Cross can help carry on this training program, help take it to new areas that need it. Give now—it may save a life sooner than you think.

You, too, can help through Your RED CROSS

Hal Boyle COLUMN

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (P) — "Gosh!" cried Captain Bligh boyishly, "Gertrude Stein is a beautiful writer!"

Pacing his hotel room as if it were a deck of H. M. S. Bounty, the Captain—who prefers to be known as Charles Laughton—told of how he had come to fall in love with Miss Stein's literary efforts. "It's an extraordinary thing how you can go through life," the actor exclaimed. "Ten years ago I couldn't understand Gertrude Stein. It was all bosh to me."

"But recently I sat down and read her aloud. It was delightful! That's how it is with great writing of that kind. You can't tell it unless you hear it."

Laughton then undertook to defend the famous passage that has caused considerable ridicule of Miss Stein by the Philistines: "A rose is a rose is a rose," etc.

Doesn't Make Much Sense

"I'll admit it doesn't seem to make much sense read in cold print," he said. "But if you take it as a child you might say it—"

And Laughton, his hair awry, threw himself in a chair, let his face and eyes wander aimlessly as he chanted in ten different treble inflections:

"A rose is a rose is a rose is a rose is a rose."

Then Laughton looked up with an air of victory, and I couldn't think of anything to say. He had given a wonderful picture of a chanting child, but I never have felt privy to Miss Stein's inner aims, so I couldn't feel sure that was what she meant or not when she said "a rose is a rose" and so forth.

Laughton, however, intends to take the issue to the people. Recently he completed a 52-city tour during which he gave a one-man show consisting of readings ranging from limericks to Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Continued Repetition

"Gertrude Stein's literary style is built on repetition, and so are parts of the Bible," he said. "I have been thinking of reading a piece of her's side by side with a selection from the Bible that's in the same style."

The actor plans to make an annual tour, giving his readings, and says it is the best fun he's ever had.

"It isn't new," he said. "Charles Dickens and Mark Twain used to do it. I just revived it—the reading of classics aloud. It has a nostalgic appeal. And it's an extraordinarily friendly exchange—a nice warm feeling for them and for me."

But I think another reason is that Laughton, one of the most versatile actors of our time, has had a lifelong dread of being typecast. And by reading from a dozen books in a single evening he can play dozens of roles that show the real range of his talent. "Actually, I know them all by heart," he said. "But the book in my hand lets me be any age or personality I want. It gives me the freedom of the universe."

Interchangeable
"The people are so used to type casting that you need a gimmick to get over it. The book does it for me."

"For three or four minutes I am only a movie star they remember from a certain film. But in another few minutes they are just children saying, 'tell me another story.'"

And Charles Laughton is no longer Charles Laughton or just Captain Bligh. He's Solomon, and Puck, and Henry at Agincourt, and Mr. Pickwick, and a railroad train, and a tall gaunt man at Gettysburg.

That's a wonderful feeling, too, when you're stout and 50—and a rose tends to be just a rose just a rose just a rose.

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

Harry Hawkins left for Jefferson City to organize a post of the Travelers' Protective association.

The Rev. J. J. Wilkins, D. D., a former rector of Calvary Episcopal church parish, was here to preach at the morning service at that church Sunday.

W. H. Hall, recently appointed superintendent of telegraph for M. K. & T., was here from Denison on business. He takes the place of S. K. Bullard, who has been placed on the retired list.

The devotion was given by Mrs. Floyd Thomason. Roll call was answered by fourteen members with "One thing I do to save time and energy." A committee was appointed for Achievement Day, consisting of Mrs. E. Vannoy, Mrs. William Brandhorst, Mrs. L. Powell and Mrs. Bill May. The club voted to contribute to the cancer fund polio and Red Cross.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Floyd Thomason with pepper ups for dull meals as demonstration. Miss Watkins gave tips on laundry and showed some of the improved irons.

Van Natta 4-H Club Meeting

The members, guests and leaders of the Van Natta 4-H club, numbering 44, enjoyed a picture show given at the meeting of that organization on Monday, February 20, at the school.

A short business meeting before the show was presided over by the president, George A. Buchholz.

Talks were given by Harry Long and Ann Harding and demonstrations were given by Rose and Corde Brandenburg and Larry Stark.

Shot talks and announcements were made by Bryan M. Phifer, assistant County Agent, and Miss Lillian Watkins, demonstration agent, from the County Extension office.

To Clean Cemetery

The members brought up the subject of the community project of cleaning the John George cemetery and decided to assist.

Leonard Swope from the Stevenson Tractor company operated the movie projector which was loaned by that company and the following pictures were shown: "Woody Woodpecker," a comedy, "Indian Summer" and Abbott and Costello in "Hit the Ice."

After the showing of the picture games were played and refreshments served.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at 8:00 o'clock Monday night at which time roll call will be "A Superstition."

South Abell Club Meeting

The South Abell Extension Club held its regular meeting Wednesday, February 8, at the home of Mrs. R. G. Franklin, with Mrs. Raymond Chancey, assisting hostess.

At noon, a contributive dinner was served. In the afternoon, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Barwick. The "Song of Peace" was sung and the club collect repeated. "Plantings I have used to screen an unpleasant view" was answered at roll call by twelve members. It was decided to buy new window shades for the Community Hall. Mrs. Billings gave a talk on good citizenship. Four visitors were present.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Schneider.

Monkeyshines In the World Of Animals

By the Associated Press

There were a lot of week-end monkeyshines in the animal kingdom.

And the wild leopard on the loose in Oklahoma kept the antics going.

The beast had terrorized a large part of the city and countryside during the weekend.

Various other furred and feathered friends and foes of man got into the news.

For instance—a cat that dined with a mouse, another cat that caused an auto to squeak, a fox strangled by a boy who lost his cocker spaniel pet, and seagulls foolish enough to get in the way of an airliner.

An animal story began in Morristown, N. J., last week when twelve-year-old Theodore Lovenberg choked a fox to death with his hands "because he was gonna bite Boots."

The boy explained that "Boots" was "a little ole black cocker spaniel who followed me around all the time."

But it developed yesterday that "Boots" really was "Mustard," and had an owner.

The owner called "Mustard" as the dog followed the boy, and a great friendship was broken up—but only partly.

"Mustard's owner said Theodore can visit the dog. And the boy is going to get a $3 bounty from the authorities for the fox's ears."

Fifty seagulls went to that land where good seagulls go, due to their poor judgment yesterday at Columbia airport, Portland, Ore. Several hundred gulls were resting on the runway when a United Air Lines plane set down. The roar scared the gulls into flight.

In addition to the dead gulls, there were dents and cracks in the plane as they came in contact.

Cat-and-mouse dinner dates came to light in Plainville, Conn. Mrs. Alice Curtis had depended on her cat, Tony, to handle a mouse that she knew was invading her kitchen. She set out a saucer of milk for the cat — and was quite surprised when the mouse walked in and the cat moved over so they both could drink.

Indianapolis produced the story of Jungle Baby, a black cat which disappeared nine days ago from the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Oyler.

A mysterious squeak developed in the family car at the same time that the cat vanished.

Jungle Baby — unhurt but hungry — was found wedged between a wheel spring and the muffler.

Sammy, a black tomcat, took refuge in a clump of 50-foot palm trees when he was chased by a bigger and older tomcat two weeks ago at Phoenix, Ariz.

Sammy, the pet of three-year-old Mike Pryor, refused to come down. He won't be enticed by food and can't be snared by firemen on ladders. He just peeks out once in a while to let the gathered crowds know he still is up there protecting his nine lives.

NEEDLEPOINT CHAMP—Tasker H. Bliss, above, was one of 25 men who submitted entries in a fine needlepoint exhibit held at a Columbus, O., department store. Bliss and his daughter, Cheryl Ann, are seen with a prize-winning specimen of the needlepoint he learned to do while in a Japanese prison camp.

To Head Group In Fight On Crime

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—Arlon Wilson, 34, former FBI agent, Monday was employed as managing director of the newly-organized Kansas City Crime Commission.

Wilson said tonight he plans to make a study of the Chicago crime commission system, set up more than 30 years ago to aid law enforcement officers.

To Labor Camp Over Boast On Food Thrown Away

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 28—(P)—The U. S. embassy reported Monday a naturalized American was sentenced to a year in a Slovak labor camp for saying "in America we throw away better food than they eat in Czechoslovakia."

The citizen who was visiting relatives in Topolcany, Slovakia, was identified as Imrich Solar, 56, of New York City. It was said he was of Slovak origin.

Missouri Pacific Shop Notes

Jimmie Wolf, sheet metal worker for the Missouri Pacific in McGee, Ark., has returned there after spending a few days visiting relatives and friends in Sedalia.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jett and family have returned to their home in DeSoto, Mo., after spending the week-end visiting relatives and friends in Sedalia. Mr. Jett is general car foreman at DeSoto.

John Thomas, carman employed with the Missouri Pacific in Kansas City, spent the week-end visiting his family in Sedalia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Coyle have left for Ottumwa, Ia., where Mrs. Coyle will enter a hospital for medical attention. Mr. Coyle is a pipefitter.

Charles Wooster, fire chief at the Missouri Pacific shops left Sunday for St. Louis to enter the Missouri Pacific hospital for an operation.

Engines 23 and 9713 which have been overhauled at the shops were released for service last week.

Mrs. Helen Martin Gettys of the publicity department of the Missouri Pacific with headquarters in St. Louis was a visitor at the shops Friday attending a meeting of the executive board of the Missouri Pacific Booster club. Later that evening Mrs. Gettys organized the Women's Booster club.

Work has been completed on the new store room at the new shops which has replaced the building that was burned two years ago. The work was done by the B & B gang under the supervision of T. J. Flessa. Work is now under

February Meet Of Homemakers

The Mount Carmel Homemakers club held its February meeting in the home of Mrs. Clint Atkins. Nine members were present and visitors were Miss Marshall, Home Demonstration agent, Mrs. Hampton, Mrs. Elbert Atkins, Miss Cynthia Atkins, Mrs. Kenneth Wilde. Two men and several children also attended. Mrs. Wilde became a member.

The morning was spent socially and at noon a covered dish luncheon was served.

In the afternoon a business meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Vincel Shrout.

way on another store department building located north of the one just completed. The steel work on this building was erected Friday.

D. A. Vanderlinden, sheet metal worker employed with the Missouri Pacific in Kansas City spent the week-end visiting his family in Sedalia.

A prayer was given by Mrs. Jim Hatfield, the club collect was given and the group sang several songs.

Names were drawn for "chum pals."

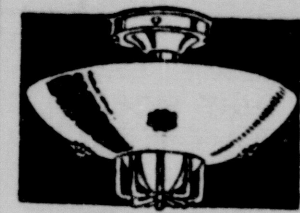

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. J. Beeman. Mrs. Atkins received a kitchen shower.

S-C Tigers Enter State Meet Tonight

Opponents Will Be Springfield At 8:25 O'clock

The Smith-Cotton Tigers will enter the race for the state class A basketball crown, along with 15 other Missouri high school teams. The Tiger's first round opponents tonight at 8:25 o'clock, at Columbia, will be the Senior High Bulldogs of Springfield.

The Tigers moved into the state tournament by downing the Booneville cagers last Friday to take the regional crown, while the Springfield squad moved into the state meet by defeating the defending state champions, Buffalo 41 to 23 Saturday. Sedalia's Tigers by virtue of their wins in the regional, now have a 23-4 mark for the year.

Hannibal Is Favorite

The strong Hannibal Pirates probably rate the favorite role in the state tourney, as they are the only remaining undefeated class "A" team left in the state. The Pirates have downed the Tigers three times this year, twice by two-point margins of 40-38 and 39-37 and the other by a 53-44 count. The Tigers, should they meet the Pirates in the state tourney will be hoping that the fourth time will be the charm. With Hannibal the winner, and Sedalia the runner up in the six-team CEMO conference, the home conference has one of the best representations in the state.

Springfield Is Tall

The Bulldog aggregation from Springfield will have a decided height advantage over the S-C team, but the home town boys hope to have more hustle and fight to overcome the advantage. The star of the Bulldog team is their towering center, Ray Birdsong, who stands six feet seven inches tall. He led the team through the current year and is only a junior. The battle between him and Sedalia's excellent center, Bill Holst, should be a major part, decide the contest. The other probable starters on the Springfield squad are: Bill Abney, guard and stands 6 feet; Frank Kirby, the other guard, who also hits the six foot mark; Don Wheeler, forward, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall and the final starter is Taylor Hanson only 5' 10". The Springfield squad is a very good defensive club and if the Tigers can start hitting the bucket they should win. Springfield will probably be the Tigers' toughest foe between the semi-finals or even the finals.

If Sedalia's Tigers get by Springfield, they will play the winner of the Saint Joe Benton-Clinton contest in the quarter-finals Thursday afternoon. If they win that tilt they would play in the semi-finals Friday night and the finals Saturday.

Tigers Average 51.3 Points

After the regions, the Tigers average has dropped only one-tenth of a point, as they maintain a high 51.3 point average for the season. In making this average, the Tigers have run up 1,386 points for the whole year in winning 23 of their 27 games. In the same 27 games, Sedalia has held their opponents total to 866 points per contest which gives them a "red hot" defensive average of 32.1, which is a drop of 5 points from before the regional.

The scuffle for the boys, whose teams remain in the tourney are packed full of interesting things. On Thursday, the boys will see some basketball pictures and afterward they will tour the campus. On Friday, the boys will have their big day, they will see more pictures in the morning and in the afternoon they will be guests at a student show in the education building auditorium.

Tigers Leave at 12:30

Ten Smith-Cotton Tigers and coaches Ball and Glavin left from the school at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon for the journey to Columbia, where they will have a practice session in Brewer field house where the games will be played. This is to let the boys get used to the court, but more important, to become accustomed to the glass backboards on which none of the high school players have had an opportunity to play on before.

The boys making the trip are: probable starters, Walker and Lankenau, guards; Holst, center; and forwards, Brown and Ruffin, the reserves making the trip are: McCrary, Morgan, Shawver, Johnson, and Edwards.

Schedules

The schedule for the games in the tourney is: eliminating round today—three games beginning at 7 p.m.; Wednesday 5 games beginning at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.; quarter-finals Thursday, four games beginning at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.; Friday, two games beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the semi-finals and Saturday the finals and third place battle beginning at 8 o'clock. The pairings for the first round are: upper bracket: McBride vs. William Chrisman at 3:25 Wednesday; Lebanon vs. St. Louis University High at 7 p.m. Wednesday; Kirkwood vs. Poplar Bluff at 8:25 Wednesday and Hannibal vs. Flat River at 9:50 Wednesday; in the lower bracket: Clinton vs. St. Joe Benton at 7 o'clock tonight; Smith-Cotton vs. Springfield at 8:25 o'clock tonight; Rockhurst (Kansas City) vs. Crystal City at 9:50 o'clock tonight and Joplin vs. Beaumont (St. Louis) at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Some of the Problems in 16 Big League Camp Sites

28 Knockouts In Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—(AP)—The Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, after producing plenty of knockout action among the little guys, moves into big boy competition tonight at the Chicago Stadium.

The four lighter weights — flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweight — battled through 112 bouts before 3,822 at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Tonight, a similar number of bouts in the four top weights — welter, middle, light-heavy and heavyweight — will round out the field for quarterfinal competition at the stadium in all eight classes Wednesday night.

The inaugural session last night testing the best boxers from 41 different centers in middle, southern and far-western states produced 28 knockouts.

One of the eye-catchers was Cleveland's Emil Lakatos, who stopped two opponents in the 135-pound division.

Team leaders after the four lighter weight division had cleaned up the preliminaries were Nashville, Tenn. with seven points and Cleveland with six points.

U. S. Golfers to British Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP)—Willie Turnesa and Frank Stranahan, both former champions, will lead Uncle Sam's assault on the British Amateur golf tournament this year.

A half-dozen Americans, including crooner Bing Crosby, have signed intentions of competing at the historic Royal and Ancient club of St. Andrews May 22-27. Turnesa, who won the British crown in 1947 between a couple of U.S. amateur triumphs, announced this would be his only foreign venture in 1950. The rest of the time, he said, will be concentrated on U.S. events, particularly the Open.

Stranahan, who captured the title in 1948, has designs on both the British Amateur and Open titles.

Other U.S. contenders will be Richard D. Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C., former U.S. Amateur champion; William C. Campbell, the golfing legislator of Huntington, West Va.; Udo Reinach of New York, and George L. Coleman of Miami, Okla.

Coleman is an Oklahoma bank president and a golfing companion of Crosby, who is a three-handicap player of the Bel Air country club in Los Angeles.

Lop-Sided Victories In Cage Tournament

MOBERLY, Mo., Feb. 28—(AP)—Lop-sided victories marked the opening games of the state Junior College basketball tournament yesterday.

Moberly and Chillicothe Business College, seeded one-two, showed a terrific scoring punch as all the favorites cleared the first round.

Moberly, the defending champion, battered Monett 83-50, and Chillicothe romped on Conservation College of Iberia 82-56.

Flat River stopped Wentworth 72-48, Jefferson City trounced Mo-Ark Baptist of West Plains 68-54, and Hannibal-LaGrange breezed past Trenton 55-47.

Five more games are booked for today in the five-day event.

Wentworth will play Monett at 1:30 p.m. and Conservation College will meet Trenton at 3 p.m. in the consolation bracket.

Quarter-final pairings of the championship bracket:

6 p.m.—Missouri Baptist (Poplar Bluff) vs. Chillicothe.

7:30 p.m.—Jefferson City vs. St. Joseph.

9 p.m.—Hannibal-LaGrange vs. Southwest Baptist (Bolivar).

'Lukewarm' Toward Entering NAIB Meet

SAN JOSE, Calif., Feb. 28—(AP)—Athletic Director S. G. Hartman said last night that San Jose State would not attempt to go to the National Invitational basketball tournament at Kansas City this year.

San Jose State defeated Pepperdine the last two years to win the NAIB bid and is logical contender from Northern California again this year.

Hartman said the season already had been long enough and that the players, most of whom have made the two previous trips, were "lukewarm" toward the tournament.

San Jose State, ranked 19th in the nation in the Associated Press weekly poll, has won 18 and lost 7 games this season.

National Catholic Case Tourney Opens March 15 BALTIMORE, Feb. 28—(AP)—Five teams were lined up today for the National Catholic Intercollegiate basketball tournament which opens here March 15.

A tournament committee spokesman announced yesterday acceptances had been received from Loras of Dubuque, Ia., and St. Michael's of Burlington, Vt. Siena, Dayton and Baltimore Loyola already had agreed to participate.

By Ralph Roden

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP)—Major league baseball's 1950 spring training season opens tomorrow and each of the 16 camp sites will house at least one "question mark."

The world champion New York Yankees, for instance, anxiously will be watching Joe Dimaggio, Johnny Mize and Tommy Henrich go through their paces.

The questions: Has Dimaggio recovered completely from the heel ailment that kept him out of the lineup in his team's first 65 games last year?

Has Mize recovered from a shoulder injury that regulated the big bat to pinch-hitting chores only during the stretch drive?

Has Henrich recuperated from a shoulder injury that caused him to play out the 1949 season in a corset?

St. Louis Cardinals

The St. Louis Cardinals, who like the Yanks, train at St. Petersburg, also have a number of question marks. These include first baseman Nippy Jones and Steve Bulko, shortstop Marty Marion and third baseman Eddie Kozak.

Jones is recovering from a back operation. Bulko has under gone a leg operation. Kozak has had an ankle operation. Marion has chronic back trouble.

The Philadelphia Phils, conditioning at Clearwater, wait their attention on Eddie Waitkus, first baseman, shot by a deranged girl in a Chicago hotel last year. Waitkus has been at the Phil base for some time and reports himself in shape. However, he has a fight on his hands, since Manager Eddie Sawyer has said Dick Sisler has the job.

Cincinnati Reds

At Tampa, where the Cincinnati Reds will train, the No. 1 brow wrinkler is Ewell Blackwell, lanky sidearm right-hander who underwent a kidney operation before the start of the 1949 season.

At Pasadena, Calif., the Chicago White Sox are wondering about Gus Zernial. Zernial was leading the American league in batting until he broke his collarbone.

At Lakeland, Fla., where the Detroit Tigers, the brain trust will be watching sophomore outfielder Johnny Groth. Groth, an early season sensation last year, broke his hand and missed the final part of the campaign.

Philadelphia Athletics

At West Palm Beach, Fla., the Philadelphia Athletics have pitcher Phil Marchildon and outfielder Barney McCosky. Marchildon had shoulder trouble last year and won three games and won none. McCosky, who sports a .300 plus life time batting mark, was out of last season with a side injury.

The Cleveland Indians, who boil out at Tucson, Ariz., will try to find out if Manager Lou Boudreau, second baseman Joe Gordon, third baseman Ken Keltner and pitcher Bobby Feller can return to their championship form of 1948.

Boston Red Sox

Briefly here are some of the problems in other camps: SARASOTA, Fla. — Boston Red Sox: Dave Ferriss and Ellis Kinder, pitchers. Kinder surprised the league by winning 23 games at the age of 35. The question: "Will he do it again?" Ferriss, was on the disabled list most of 1949 and if he doesn't shape up as a pitcher is expected to try his hand in the outfield.

Burbank, Calif. — The St. Louis Browns: Roy Sievers, outstanding rookie centerfielder. Sievers made the jump from Class B to the majors and the question is: "Will Sievers be the victim of the sophomore jinx?"

Washington Senators

Orlando, Fla. — Washington Senators: Outfielder Gil Coan. Coan, a minor league batting terror, still hasn't lived up to his reputation.

Bradenton, Florida — Boston Braves: Pitcher Johnny Sain and First Baseman Earl Torgeson. Sain had a poor season after three 20 game winning years. Torgeson was out most of 1949 with a shoulder separation.

Vero Beach, Fla. — Brooklyn Dodgers: Peeewe Reese. The brilliant shortstop underwent a hernia operation in the off season and has orders to take it easy for a while.

Chicago Cubs

Santa Catalina Island, Calif.—Chicago Cubs: Hank Edwards, outfielder, recovering from a bad shoulder injury and Johnny Vander Meer. Vander Meer, 35-year-old vet obtained from the Reds, will have to prove he still can pitch major league ball.

Phoenix, Ariz. — New York Giants: Jack Kramer and Eddie Stanky. Kramer, just purchased from the Red Sox, had shoulder trouble last year. Stanky, is reported to have slowed up considerably in the field.

Pittsburgh Pirates

San Bernardino, Calif. — Pittsburgh Pirates, Bob Chernes was the big right-hander, a rookie gem in 1948, just a victim of the "sophomore jinx" last year, or a flash in the pan?

Meanwhile as the boys head for camp, 44 players still remained unsigned. This list is topped by Howie Pollett of the Cards, Hal New house of the Tigers and Bob Lemon of the Indians.

Two players came to terms yesterday, Rae Scarborough of the Senators and rookie infielder Al Martin of the Yanks.

March 1 is Opening of Spring Camps

16 Big League Teams Will Start Training

By Frank Eck

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28—(AP)—Tomorrow the big leaguers can put their gloves on. Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler says so.

But Chandler made it clear today that the March 1 opening of the spring training camps for the 16 big league teams was brought on by the players themselves and not by the commissioner following his recent directive in which he said, in effect: "No training before March 1."

"It was a shame that some of the players who wanted to train in the middle of February had to leave some camps and return home," said Chandler. "But after baseball gave the players, through their player representatives, a voice in drawing up a new contract in 1946, it was the players who later rebelled against the March 1 training start."

No Jump on Others

"I have no objections to an earlier start, the clause as it now stands in each player's contract can be revised. But it is up to the players and should be equal to all. I would not permit one club to get the jump on another."

The much discussed March 1 start of training went into effect in 1948. The loudest complaints came from some of the Yankee players during the Larry MacPhail era. In 1946 he flew the Yankees to Panama for February exhibition games and in 1947 the team flew to Puerto Rico, Venezuela and Havana and it was March 10 before they reached the states.

It is now up to the player representatives on each club to find out how the majority of the big leaguers feel.

Nation's No. 1 Bird Dog Will be Picked Today

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Feb. 28—(AP)—The National Championship's long and careful trial to pick the nation's No. 1 bird-dog went into its stretch drive here today.

The winner, barring an extra series, will be named tomorrow. Thirty prize bird-dogs, including the four called up today, have made their bids for the national title, the prestige that goes with it, and a $1,000-plus purse.

Today's morning brace paired Dr. Robin, owned by Grant Spurrman of Mt. Carmel, Ill., and Marvelous Jack, owned by C. L. Little of Joplin, Mo.

In yesterday's running only Lone Survivor, owned by Dr. E. R. Calame of Jonesboro, Ark., looked sharp, and his performance wasn't up to national standards.

Survivor was braced with Paladin, another A. G. C. Sage entry, in the afternoon hunt. Neither dog was on game in his first hour. Paladin had trouble with his nose, being charged with two unproductive points.

Good Weather For Trout Opening

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28—(AP)—By the look of things Missouri's eager trout fishermen will enjoy their best opening day in years tomorrow.

The weather forecast is for clear skies and temperatures in the lower forties. That's cool, but not nearly so chilly as it usually is on March 1 in Missouri.

The weather prospect also indicated there will be a record crowd in the three state trout stream parks and the special trout management areas. Some 2,000 are expected.

Last year, the temperature was 25 degrees, well below freezing. In 1948, it rained hard and continuously, getting the fishermen almost as wet as the rainbow trout they sought. In 1947, there was four inches of snow on the ground and more coming down.

The season opens in these areas: Bennett Spring state park near Lebanon, Montauk state park in Dent county and Roaring River state park in Barry county.

Part of current river below Montauk park, Greer Springs Branch and a part of Eleven Point river in Oregon county, Meramec Spring Branch in Phelps county, Roubidoux Spring Branch in Pulaski county, part of Indian Creek near Stella in Newton and McDonald counties and a posted portion of Dry Creek below the mouth of Westover spring branch in Crawford county.

The daily limit is six trout. Some of those turned into the streams in the past few days range up to four pounds.

Dyer Will Miss Start Of Spring Training

HOUSTON, Feb. 28—(AP)—Eddie Dyer, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, will miss the start of spring training in St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday. He and Mrs. Dyer had planned on leaving over the week-end, but he took influenza.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dyer were in bed with the flu today. Eddie hopes to fly out of Houston for camp by Friday, although he still was running a temperature today.

Three members of the Houston winter contingent of the Cardinals piled into a car today and headed for Florida—pitchers Ted Wilks and George Munger, and infielder Solly Hemus.

Sticking to his Houston home was Howie Pollett, ace left-hander of the Cardinal staff who won 20 games last season, and has not signed a contract yet.

He will not report until terms are agreed on with President Fred Saigh of the Cardinals, who now is in Florida.

Carrasquel to Back up Appling; Others Aid Improved White Sox

CHICAGO — (NEA) — When and if Lucius Benjamin Appling steps down in his 20th year as shortstop for the White Sox, the Chicago Americans' management has a suitable replacement in Alfonso Carrasquel.

"If he can hit within 50 points of his .315 average at Fort Worth, he can play in the big leagues," said general manager Frank Lane, referring to the non-English speaking Venezuelan, who is almost a certainty to stick and be a constant understudy to Luke Appling.

Chico, a cousin of the veteran pitcher Alex Carrasquel, does all his talking with a ball and glove. Only 22, he had little trouble with tough Texas league pitching in 1949, his first year north of the border.

The five-foot 11-inch, 170-lb. right hander is ready to fly, beginning March 1. He spent the winter playing in the South American circuit with his native Caracas.

There is little doubt but that Carrasquel is a sound fielder and the management is now wondering what to do with the 19-year-old costly bonus player from Broken Arrow, Okla., Jim Baumer. Bating a mediocre .218 with Waterloo, Shortstop Baumer is felt to be at least three years away.

Centerfield Wide Open

Centerfield is wide open in the Comiskey park, with Gus Zernial a cinch in left and Dave Philley handling right for the sixth place and improving White Sox.

Battling Herbie Adams and Joe Ostrowski will be the newcomers Gerry Scala and Bill Higdon.

Scala seems sure to stick. Higdon looked excellent in a short tour with the Pale Hose last summer.

Higdon, a speed merchant, was the Class A Central league's leading batter with .330 in 1949. He is a fine defensive center fielder and a left-hand line drive hitter.

Outfielder Bill Wilson broke a toe, which practically cheated him of an entire year's Triple A experience with Sacramento. Six feet two and 200 pounds, Wilson has established himself as a distance hitter-to-be, especially with his prodigious home run which cleared the 425-foot wall in the Anaheim, Calif. park by several feet.

"We're really going to give that boy a chance this spring," states Jack Onslow. "He just might make it from all I've heard concerning his hitting."

Lean and lanky, with a fast ball that takes off, Bruner fanned 173. Three I league batters winning 13 for his home town, Waterloo.

Right-hander Bill Connolly was drafted from Toledo and is notoriously wild.

Plans call for Manager Onslow and Coach Ray Berres to doctor his wild slants, give Chicago another right-hander to go along with Randy Gumpert.

Catcher Joe Erazut, .312 with Little Rock, has a good chance to hang on.

Infielder Rocky Krsnich showed he could hit at Memphis with 14 doubles and 20 home runs to go with a .318 mark, but at 22 is probably a year away since Hank Majeski and Floyd Baker will handle third base.

A few new faces and Slugger Zernial operating full time make the present White Sox a steadily improving club in the American league picture.

Glove Man — Non-English-speaking Alfonso Carrasquel does all his talking with a ball and glove.

Arkansas University Senior Is Ready to Play Football

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28—(AP)—The operation on his bad knee pronounced successful, Leon Campbell today began a program of exercises designed to get him in shape for his debut with the Baltimore Colts.

After removing the cast from the ailing limb yesterday, Dr. George E. Bennett told the Colts, "you've got yourself a football player."

The Arkansas University senior, acquired by the Colts in the National-American football league draft, underwent surgery for torn ligaments.

Bennett said Campbell will return to Arkansas within the day or two.

Westminster Team Upset St. Louis

FULTON, Mo., Feb. 28—(AP)—Westminster upset Washington University of St. Louis 54-53 in an overtime nonconference basketball game last night.

Dave Silkiner tied the score at 50-50 for Westminster in the last 30 seconds of regular time, then he hit the winning basket in the final 15 seconds of the overtime.

The game was close all the way. Halftime score was 25-25.

Bill Geitz, Westminster, was high scorer with 19 points. Bob Light led Washington with 13.

Westminster's victory avenged a 65-36 beating by Washington in the season opener for both teams at St. Louis.

Conservation Holds Meeting

Several sportsmen and farmers attended the first regular meeting of the newly organized Pettis County Conservation, which was held February 16 at 7:30 p. m. in the basement of Hugel's Tavern, where the organization will again meet March 1 at 7:30 p. m. From then on meetings will be held in the court house.

The meeting was called to order by the president Carl Wollett, who was elected president when the Conservation first organized several weeks ago. At the same time Herman Bloess, Jr., was elected secretary-treasurer.

During the last meeting Bob Bothwell was elected vice president and the following committee heads were named: Pete Courtney, membership; Herman Cook, multiflora rose farm improvement; Jack Bloess, fishing; J. B. Woodward, quail; Tom Sanders, hunting; Leonard Carson, social and W. C. Berry, finance.

The regular meeting time was decided by a vote and was set for every other Wednesday, dating from February 16, 1950. Any person interested in hunting and fishing are welcome to join the organization.

The Conservation is non-political, non-profit organization composed of hunters, fishermen, farmers and other citizens interested in the conservation, restoration and wise use of our natural resources.

At the present time there are 56 members in the Pettis county Conservation and several thousand in the Conservation of Missouri.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

DISASTER AT SEA is depicted in this reproduction of a painting by German artist Willy Stöwer of the sinking of the 66,000-ton Titanic, proud British luxury liner and greatest ocean vessel of her time. The Titanic, bound for New York from Southampton, struck an iceberg off Newfoundland on the night of April 14, 1912, and carried more than 1500 persons, many of them Americans, to their death. It was the maiden voyage of the $7,500,000 floating mansion. Of a new type construction, she was called the world's first truly unsinkable ship. Some 700 passengers survived, thanks largely to wireless distress signals flashed to nearby ships. The world knew little of the great tragedy while it was going on. It was 24 hours afterward before detailed news began reaching New York.

Video Laughs Without Script
CHICAGO — (AP) — Animals can get laughs on television without any help from gag writers. Take, for instance, Herbert, the orang-utan. He was in the midst of his unicycle ride on the Super Circus show when he decided to pad his part. He stopped, picked up the wheel and threw it at the band leader.

Herbert was doing a roller skating turn when the urge to ad lib seized him again. He snatched off a skate and hurled it through the bass drum. He got his laughs — and the hook, too.

Tight Control On Potatoes

Senate Votes To Permit Increase In Wheat Acreage

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(P)—Senate voted Monday to permit the planting of more cotton and wheat under government price protection—and to require rigid quotas if Irish potatoes are exported next year.

It also rejected a proposal to prohibit the importation of potatoes when there is a domestic surplus, as there now is.

The Senate wrapped up these and miscellaneous other farm matters in a catch-all bill which it passed by a vote of 53 to 24 and sent back to the House. Numerous differences remain to be adjusted by conference between the two bodies.

The bill came to the Senate essentially a measure for the upward adjustment of acreage allotments under the government's cotton price program. During a week's intermittent debate, the Senate put most of the emphasis on the potato problem. Although it voted some restrictions on 1950 potato price supports, it rejected a proposal to cut them off immediately and keep them off until the growers agree to a tight production control program.

That drastic remedy, proposed by Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois, was rejected Friday.

Propose Rigid Quotas

The bill as passed by the Senate provides that:

1. Potatoes raised this year can qualify for price support if they were grown under regional marketing agreements, which govern the size and quality of potatoes which may be shipped.

2. The 1951 crop could be supported only if the growers agreed to rigid nationwide quotas on the number of bushels that could be planted and harvested.

3. The agriculture department may sell at cost surplus potatoes it has acquired under the price support program.

4. An additional 600,000 to 790,000 acres of land may be planted to cotton, over and above the 21,000,000 acres permitted by the 1949 farm law. (The House voted for a new expansion of 1,400,000 to 2,000,000 acres.)

5. Millions of acres of additional land may be planted to wheat in new areas brought into wheat cultivation since the war. Senators Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) and Millikin (R-Colo.), who sponsored the amendment for the benefit of western states, estimated the increase at 1,400,000 acres. The agriculture department said it would add about 4,000,000 acres. The current acreage allotment for wheat is approximately 73,500,000 acres compared with 83,000,000 acres planted in 1949.

6. Peanut growers can sell their excess production to the government for crushing into oil. The growers would not get support prices on the excess production. The Senate threw out a House provision which would have added 100,000 acres to the present 2,100,000 allotted for peanuts.

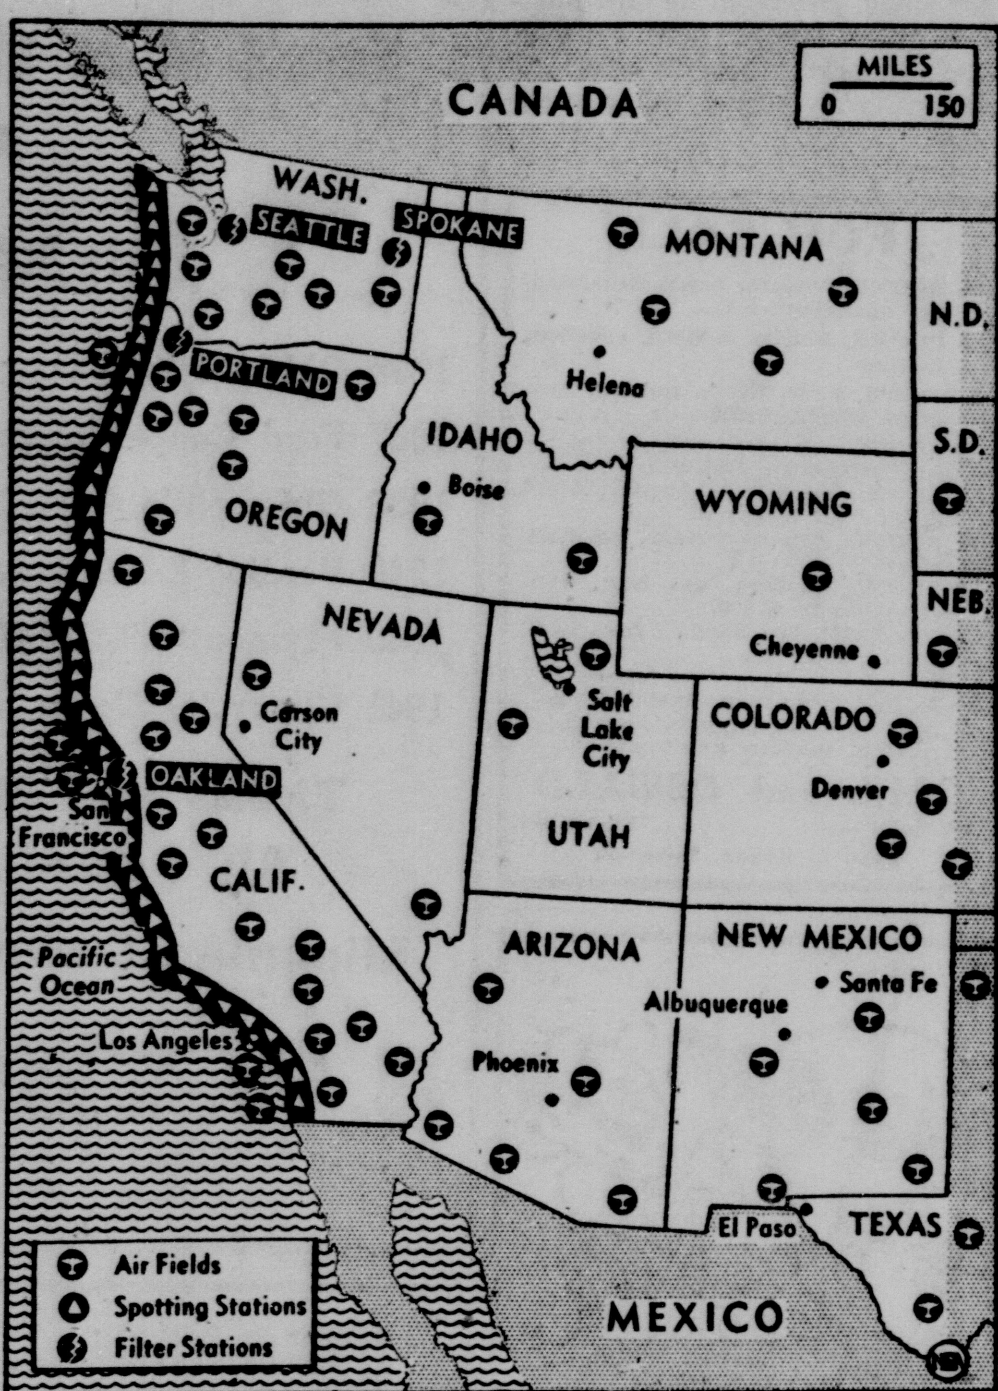

Chairman Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) of the Senate agriculture committee put through the proposal to let the government sell the surplus potatoes at cost.

Before they could be destroyed or given away, they would have to be put up for sale at the point of storage in surplus areas for consumption in areas where there is a shortage.

Thomas said it would make potatoes available at about 2 cents a pound. He said that in many parts of the United States they now are selling for 3½ to 5 cents a pound.

Run To Grass Fire

Fire companies were called to 1109 East Broadway at 4:12 o'clock Monday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire. There was no damage resulted.

ALERT IN THE WEST—The Western Air Defense Command will set up "as soon as possible" a tightly knit dual system of air raid warning and aircraft spotting along the entire Pacific coast area. A call has gone out for 50,000 volunteers to man spotting and warning stations within the command, indicated by white area on map. Of these, 25,000 will be needed for California alone. Spotting stations will be eight miles apart along the length of the coast. Spotters will feed their reports to seven "filter" stations, (four shown) these coordinate reports and pass them on to the Air Force. Key raid warning centers will be manned "24 hours a day, seven days a week indefinitely." After organization is completed, personnel trained and practice exercises held, the aircraft spotting system will go on "standby" basis. The systems will be adjuncts of a radar warning network now partially developed.

Sixty Rescued In Wheeling Fire

WHEELING, W.Va., Feb. 28.—

(P)—Fire ravaged half a business block in downtown Wheeling last night, hospitalizing at least two persons and causing untold damage.

A crumbling wall of the six-story Danny Phillips building, where the fire started, toppled over in the immediate vicinity of a number of firemen. It was thought at first they were trapped under the debris, but the fire fighters had cleared the area in the nick of time.

One person hospitalized was a 78-year-old man suffering from shock. He was evacuated from his bed in one of the fire-damaged buildings by rescuers.

Another was a woman whose injuries were not determined.

Firemen rescued at least 60 persons with ladders. They included a group of dancing pupils and instructors, many of them scantily clad in dancing costumes.

The fire swept from the Phillips building next door to the Arlington hotel, then spread rapidly to

Snags Hanging Plane Wheel

John Vess With Dexterity Saves Possible Crackup

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—(P)—John Vess, 23, leaned out of the little training plane 1,500 feet above the earth. Frantically he tried to lasso the broken wheel assembly.

Finally he made it. He snubbed the rope tight and his pilot, Bud Jones, 28, brought the little ship in safely on the crippled landing gear.

But it was a tough 30 minutes for all concerned Monday afternoon.

Vess and Jones, both of Jefferson City, were flying the new plane to nearby Columbia, Mo. As they took off from Municipal Airport here their boss, Ray Brummett, noticed that one side of the undercarriage dropped sickly.

The small craft carried no radio. Brummett hopped in another plane and chased after the crippled plane.

He pulled alongside about 15 miles from here and excitedly motioned at the other two fliers. They caught on.

Vess first opened the door and tried to snag the ranging wheel with his belt. When that didn't work he grabbed a rope out of the baggage compartment and started a loop whirling down through the slipstream. Frantic minutes and many lassoes later, he caught the wheel.

By hauling up tight on the rope he managed to get the wheel back in place and hold it until they landed. The alerted ambulance went back to town without any passengers.

Jones, a combat pilot in Europe during World War II, sighed: "Let's start another war. It's safer."

Slays One Of Two Prowlers At Home

SAVANNAH, Mo., Feb. 28.—(P)—A young farmer found two men prowling in his home Monday night and shot one of them dead when they started to run, Sheriff George Gibbons said.

The other man escaped. Six highway patrol troopers, the sheriff's deputies and a number of other men started a search for him.

The sheriff said Dale Clark, 45, of St. Joseph, was shot fatally in the chest. Before Clark died, Gibbons added, he told several witnesses his companion was Earl Edward Wilfong, 42, an ex-convict who has been living near DeKalb, Mo.

The farmer, Thomas Thompson, 26, who lives nine miles west of Savannah, related this story of the shooting.

Thompson and his wife started to drive away from their home about 6 p. m. as they turned onto the highway they met two men on foot. Looking back, the Thompsons saw the men walking down the lane toward their house.

Thompson stopped at a neighbor's home, borrowed a .22 caliber rifle, and drove back home with the car lights off. There was a light in the house.

While Mrs. Thompson stayed in the car, the farmer stood behind a tractor in the yard and yelled for the men to come out.

The two men dashed out and started to run. Thompson fired 10 or 12 times and one of them fell.

Sheriff Gibbons said Mrs. Thompson's purse, containing $3, was found in Clark's pockets.

Coroner W. E. Maxwell certified the death as occurring while the victim was fleeing from the scene of a robbery. He said there would be no inquest.

Hungry Leopard Returns

Captured Alive Early Today at The Zoo Pit After Roaming Three Days

By Saul Feldman
OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—A tired, hungry leopard—groggy from knockout drops hidden in meat bait—was captured alive early today at the zoo pit from which he escaped three days ago.

Zoo Keeper Julian Frazier fearlessly slipped a noose over the doped leopard's head just 63 hours after the animal leaped 18 feet out of the barless pit at Lincoln Park zoo.

Frazier, pulling the roped leopard, moved through one of the iron roots in the corridor, and pinned the beast against the door. Zoo attendants slipped up behind and pushed a cage around the animal, brought here a week ago from the jungles of India.

The escape of the leopard started an intensive "big game" hunt that used Marine reserves, helicopters, two-way radio, airplanes, thousands of nimrods and dozens of trained dogs.

Out maneuvered Posse
But the stealthy leopard outmaneuvered the posse which had orders to "shoot to kill."

Frazier said the beast definitely had roamed as far away as 18 miles from the zoo, located on the Northeast city limits, since he escaped Saturday afternoon at 1 p. m. (Central Standard Time).

But the drive of hunger and the thought of his mate, probably, forced him back to the zoo.

Guards patrolled the 40-acre (CQ) zoo area, but using all his jungle cunning, the beast slipped by the armed guards early today.

Four-pound chunks of horse meat, filled with knockout drops, were placed about the pit from which he escaped.

He ate three pieces, became woozy and hid in a corridor at the side of the pit which leads to the den where his mate was caged.

A game ranger and two zoo employees found the mat missing at 2 a. m. they started a search and discovered him hidden in a hole in the corridor—still groggy but awake enough to growl.

Caged The Animal
Frazier rushed to the pit and at 4 a. m. (CST) the leopard was caged and sleeping off his hang-over.

The two-hour struggle to cage the dopey but dangerous beast took place at a row of pits. A lion was caged on one side, a tiger on the other.

The pits are made to look like the natural habitats of the animals. They are concrete but colored to look like brown boulders. Inside, they are hollow and corridors lead to the pits and dens.

Officers and zoo workers stood by with guns. A searchlight illuminated the pit. A three-quarter moon added to the jungle-like atmosphere.

After it escaped, expert trappers and hounds attempted to track down the beast but always were at least 24 hours late.

Returned to Meat Ticket
"This is the only meat ticket he knew," Frazier said. "He had just been here a week but those things are smart."

Offers of help and hundreds of suggestions flooded in to Frazier from all over the country on how to capture the animal. While it was being caged, a dozen hounds were on their way by plane to aid in the search.

A detachment of Marine reserves, walkie-talkies, airplanes and two-way radio police cars were brought into the big game hunt.

Frazier said the 175-pound leopard would be turned into the den with its mate sometime during the day but it would not be on public exhibition "until we dig a deeper pit."

Although the leopard ate enough knockout drops to subdue a larger animal, it was able to throw off the effects when found.

Has No Name
The leopard and its mate, about three and a half years old, were bought by the zoo to replace two older animals.

One reporter asked Frazier if the leopard had a name.

Red Cross Month
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—Gov. Forrest Smith today proclaimed the month of March "Red Cross month" and asked citizens to support the organization's humanitarian work.

Leopard Back in Its Cage

Here is the vicious leopard, which finally came home to its pit this morning after escaping from Oklahoma City's zoo, Saturday, causing panic among the Oklahomans in that vicinity, and causing a detachment of marine reserves, walkie-talkies, airplanes and two-way radio police cars to be brought into the big game hunt. Hunger finally drove the beast back to Lincoln Park zoo, the only home he had known since being captured from the jungles of India recently. Knockout drops placed in chunks of horse meat subdued the jungle cat long enough for a zoo keeper to slip a noose around his neck to assist in caging the leopard.

No Indication Of Defense in Dr. Fuchs' Case

Violation of Official Secret Acts Trial Opens Wednesday

LONDON, Feb. 28—(P)—A corps of about 70 reporters, representing the world's press from both sides of the Iron Curtain, was allotted seats today for the trial of the brilliant German-born physicist who is accused of relaying precious atomic secrets to Russia.

The trial starts tomorrow.

There was no indication how the scientist, Dr. Klaus Emil Julius Fuchs, would plead to the two counts of violating the official secrets act. If he should plead guilty and call no defense witnesses, the proceedings might take only a few hours. British authorities have announced he confessed. A plea of innocence, however, might cause the trial to continue for some time.

The lord chief justice of England, Lord Goddard, is to hear the case. He is Britain's top criminal court judge.

The 38-year-old scientist, who lived what was called a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde life—as Britain's top atomic researcher and a funnel of British and American atomic secrets to Russia—will be tried in historic Old Bailey criminal court.

Atomic Talks Halted
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(P)—The arrest of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, British scientist charged with giving atomic secrets to Russia, has halted atomic talks among the United States, Britain and Canada.

Officials who reported this said no meetings have been held for more than a month and British and Canadian experts have returned home.

The talks, which are of a preliminary nature, began last September and are aimed at a broader exchange of atomic secrets among the three countries.

Oklahoma City Zoo Keeper is Glad Last 3 Days Are Over

By Julian Frazier

(Zoo keeper at Lincoln park as told to Saul Feldman of the Associated Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—I'm glad these past three days are over.

I'm just beyond the thinking stage. My employees and I have gone without more than a couple of hours sleep since the leopard escaped.

This leopard hunt really is a little fantastic. The cat was in a strange land and the surroundings and people were strange to it.

It was very hard to predict just what this wild beast would do. We felt since he was sighted several miles away, he might be leaving the area. However, it was in the back of our mind that he could possibly come back to the zoo area.

Going on that chance, we put the sedative in the horse meat and planted it around the pit from which it escaped.

One Man Knows What He'd do if Hit by A-Bomb

DALLAS, Feb. 28—(P)—Sam Kirk, 49, can tell you exactly what he would do if an atomic bomb hits.

He would jump out of bed, smash a window screen, climb to the roof, and then jump off the roof.

That's exactly what happened last night when he dreamed of an atom bomb attack. Now Kirk is in a hospital, recovering from his dream, a shattered elbow and bruised hip.

Debris in Parks is Being Cleaned up

The branches which fell or were trimmed from 700 trees when they were being trimmed in Liberty, Hubbard and Washington parks are now in the process of being cleaned up by the city.

All the debris, limbs, brush accumulated in the parks will be hauled out in trucks and burned. This work is expected to last a week or 10 days.

POW Checks Not Subject to Income Tax

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(P)—War claims payments to former prisoners of war and certain civilian internees will be exempt from federal income taxes, the Internal Revenue Bureau ruled today.

The War Claims Commission expects to pay about $120,000,000 to 140,000 American beneficiaries and an unestimated amount to 100,000 Philippine ex-POWs.

The first POW checks started through the mail on February 14. They are going out at the rate of 250 a week.

Earthquake in Japan

TOKYO, Feb. 28—(P)—A sharp earthquake was felt in a wide area of northern Japan tonight.

The Central Meteorological Observatory said the epicenter was on the northern coast of heavily populated Honshu Island.

No damage was reported immediately.

The tremor was felt as far south as Tokyo.

John B. Gage of Kansas City is Named Trustee

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—Five creditors of the Rice Leghorn Farms, Inc., Sedalia, have asked that the firm be reorganized under federal bankruptcy laws.

Judge Albert L. Reeves of the western district federal court of Kansas City, appointed former Mayor John B. Gage of Kansas City as trustee of the hatchery, effective today, pending further hearings here in the involuntary bankruptcy case.

These creditors asked the court to superintend reorganization of the firm:

Sedalia Bank and Trust company, which said it holds a 5 percent demand note for $7,500.

Sedalia Ice and Cold Storage company, allegedly holding statements for $855 in merchandise delivered to the firm.

Other Creditors
Missouri Public Service corporation of Warrensburg, reportedly owed $4,720 for gas and electrical service.

Insurance agency company of St. Louis, demanding payment for $1,726 in insurance premiums.

Quaker Oats company of Chicago, allegedly owed $2,184.

Their petition said Rice Leghorn suffered a poor season last year and was not sufficiently capitalized to weather the business reverse.

Earlier this month the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation instituted a foreclosure sale against Rice, but it was not completed.

Barn And Milk Shed Burned

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a large barn and milk shed on the farm of E. R. Knox, Smithton banker, located on route 5 east of Sedalia, about six miles. The farm is rented, and being worked by Harold Hill, who also resides on the farm.

The large barn had approximately 10 tons of hay in it, valued at about $200. Two plows valued at about $500, and some smaller machinery and tools. The barn was about 36x60 feet and had a large loft.

Neoma Phillips, who was in the farm house taking care of the two Hill children, said when she first discovered the fire the barn seemed to be ablaze all over and went up in flames quickly. She called Mr. Hill at the Bell Telephone office in Sedalia, and she in turn notified her husband, who was also in town getting a tractor.

Farmers and other workmen in the vicinity rushed to the fire but were unable to save the barn and hay. However, they did succeed in pulling some farm machinery out, before it was destroyed.

Mr. Knox said he carried insurance on the barn but that it would hardly cover the losses. He estimated his losses to the barn and milk shed at about $3,000. Mr. Knox said the shed was modern and equipped for a Grade A Milk dairy barn.

Not a Chance In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 28—(P)—A wild leopard, like the one which terrorized Oklahoma City apparently wouldn't have a chance in Arkansas.

A law, on Arkansas' statute books, says it is illegal for any wild animal such as a leopard or tiger to run free within the corporate limits of a city.

That was the word today from Arkansas Attorney General Ike Murry in answer to a question from J. E. Brazill, city attorney of Morrilton, Ark.

Murry wrote that any city or town has the authority to prevent by ordinance the "running at large of wild or domesticated animals" within the corporate limits.

Bradley Tries Out Sub
KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 28—(P)—General Omar Bradley went down in a submarine today for the first time in his long military career. He plans to go up in a blimp tomorrow.

The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff made the crash dive during a combined business and vacation visit at the naval air station.

Both Hands Injured
HOUSTON, Mo., Feb. 28—(P)—Some time ago Guy Parks, 55, a farmer, lost all four fingers and part of the thumb on his left hand in a saw mill accident. Yesterday his other hand was caught in the same saw rig.

And the four fingers on his right hand were clipped off, right up against his hand.

Warm Weather In Prospect

By the Associated Press

Warmer weather, appeared in prospect for most of the nation today, helping to save on the thinning coal supplies.

The Midwest, after a week of cold weather, got a batch of warm and moist air which spread from Texas and the west gulf area to Lake Superior. Thunder storms were reported in many sections, with hail in some parts of the wet belt. Temperatures generally headed above the freezing mark, although in some parts of Michigan and Wisconsin the run fell in sub-freezing temperatures and some glazing was reported.

The coldest weather early today covered the middle and north Atlantic states. The mercury was below zero in northern New England and western New York. The cold belt extended southward as far as Charleston, S. C. The mercury hit 29 at Charleston; 19 at Richmond, Va.; 22 at Greensboro, N. C.; 28 at Columbia, S. C.; and an even 32 at Norfolk, Va. It was 39 at Jacksonville, Fla., but near normal readings were reported over most of the rest of the south. A general warming up was forecast.

Fair weather was reported from the Ohio Valley to the Atlantic Coast. Skies were clear throughout the western part of the country except for some showers in the central Rockies.

Improvement Program For Schools Opens

Work Has Begun at Smith-Cotton and Whittier Schools

The initial start of the $733,725.82 school improvement program for public schools in Sedalia was begun Monday at Smith-Cotton high school and Whittier grade school by the E. A. Brunson Construction Company of St. Louis which has the contract to construct a cafeteria at Smith-Cotton, auditorium at Whittier, alterations at Broadway school and additions to Hubbard school.

This morning, a dragline digging machine, was being used on the job at Smith-Cotton for excavating tunnels in preparation for the laying of various pipes necessary to operate a cafeteria.

George F. Trost, superintendent for the Brunson Construction Company, said they expect to be ready to pour concrete footings about Thursday.

The superintendent said they started out with a skeleton crew on both jobs, but in a couple of weeks, thought they would be using between 25 and 30 workers.

Started with Skeleton Crew
The cafeteria will be constructed south of the Smith-Cotton building on the tennis court side, and the size will be approximately 114 feet by 108 feet. Inside this cafeteria building will be a large dining room, approximately 90 feet by 75 feet. The cafeteria will have an up-to-date kitchen and will be furnished with the best equipment, Mr. Trost said.

The cafeteria, which will be apart from the high school, will be a one-story brick structure. It will be covered with Lammella roof structure, and the floors will be of terrazzo, a mixture of cement and marble.

Mr. Trost said the contract calls for 12 months to finish the cafeteria, nine months at Whittier. If there are no delays in getting materials, he said they expected to step up in construction. He said they could not work on Broadway school until the school dismisses for the summer vacation.

The total contract price for the construction of the cafeteria is $121,256 and $108,188 for work at Whittier school.

Attlee Plans To Announce His Cabinet

By the Associated Press

Fire broke out under the ancient British House of Commons today on the eve of assembly of newly elected members. It was put out in 10 minutes. There was little damage.

While, fire brigades rushed to action, Prime Minister Clement Attlee was preparing to announce his revamped cabinet. He informed King George VI last night that despite his slim majority won in last Thursday's election he would carry on the government.

Observers generally predicted the Labor government sooner or later would be forced to resign and new elections held. Press forecasts said the elections might come in June and not later than the autumn.

It was believed that to stay in power as a caretaker government, Labor might have to shelve its nationalization program. This move would be forced by the powerful Conservative opposition. It would be unpopular with the left-wing Laborites, who might lack over the traces. Attlee will be walking a political tightrope.

First Real Test
The first real test will come in the debate on the speech from the throne which outlines government policy. The speech will be read by the king next Monday. If the Attlee government passes that test it next meets the budget.

Conservatives won many votes in the last election by promising a cut in taxes. If the government does not cut taxes in accordance with the Conservatives, it might very well fall on this challenge. The Conservatives would relish going to the country on such an issue because it is a major vote-getter.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison who managed Labor's election campaign told a meeting last night the new election may "come sooner rather than later."

He urged Laborites to keep the election machinery ready for use at any moment.

Chiang Back in Saddle
Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is back in the saddle as president of Nationalist China. He "retired" as president and commander-in-chief of Nationalist forces over a year ago. He announced he is returning to both jobs.

He is replacing acting president Li Tsung-Jen who is recuperating in a New York hospital.

All that is left of Nationalist China now is the island of Formosa and some other islands off the Chinese coast. An invasion by Chinese Communists is imminent.

The Nationalists warned that all ships trading with the Communists are subject to air assault. Two American ships were bombed and strafed by unidentified planes suspected of being Nationalist yesterday. The bombs missed. One sailor was injured. The Nationalists have declared a blockade of all Communist Chinese ports.

One of the most helpful departments in Jefferson City at the present time, according to Mr. Cooper, is the legislative research department. This department helps put the bills in their final form for presentation to the two houses. Formerly, bills were prepared by lobbyists in their original form and considerable time had to be spent in checking the bills to determine whether they are constitutional and conform to other laws of the state. The legislative research department serves as an aid to the general assembly in going over the proposed bills and also in preparing amendments that conform with the laws of the state and the constitution.

Rev. W. C. Bessemer and Carl Frank were presented to the club as newly elected members. Roger Fuller was also presented as a guest.

5-Year-Old Boy Tells Navy How to Float a Battleship

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 28—(P)—Just ask five-year-old Loren Devine how to float a battleship out of a mudbank—he'll tell you.

And it won't be just scuttlebutt, Mac, because he got the word straight from the bridge.

Now hear this: Loren has fought many a toy-boat-in-a-dispan battle himself. He knows what it is to have a ship out of commission. He was so worried about the grounding of the U. S. S. Missouri that he dictated this letter:

"Why can't you six the wreck on its bottom so it can sail again?" His mother, Mrs. Thomas B. Devine, forwarded it to naval authorities.

Another Epoch Comes to an End

By Al Daniel

PIEDMONT, Mo., Feb. 28—(P)—Another epoch in the saga of Jesse James, famed Missouri outlaw and reputed Robin Hood of the Ozarks, will close at 8 Wednesday morning when Missouri Pacific train 26, the Texan, moves over a new million and a half dollar grade reduction at Gads Hill, scene of the second train robbery in the world, back in 1874.

For the first time since the twin lines of steel reached the crest of the Ozarks divide between Black and St. Francis river in 1870, trains will cease to pass the point where the booted buccanniers of the backwoods rifled mail bags, carried away the safe from the express car and terrified passengers of the southbound train as the flickering light of a blazing pile of cross-ties gave the scene the semblance of an inferno.

Optimist Club Hears Talk on Legislature

Wallace Cooper, Johnson County, Was Guest Speaker

The Optimist club, at the noon meeting today, was informed concerning the duties of the members of the general assembly of Missouri by Wallace Cooper, state representative from Johnson County, President Frank Mehl, after routine business reports of the club, turned the meeting over to Dan Doty, who in turn introduced his legislative colleague, Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Cooper stated that the 65th General Assembly of Missouri faced at the beginning of the session in excess of 750 proposed pieces of legislation. In order to meet the task that confronts it, the legislature is divided into committees and the bills proposed are referred to the various committees. In order to get the work done, it is necessary for the legislature to convene during the day and work at night in the form of various committees.

Passed 114
Of the some 750 or more proposed bills the legislature only passed 114. However, Mr. Cooper stated that it was his opinion it is "more dangerous to pass a bad bill than to fail to pass a good one." He also stated that he believes that the bi-cameral system is better than the uni-cameral system. It is easier for pressure groups to influence one house, but would be pretty hard for them to control both houses of a legislature.

Strike Spreads Misery

Contempt Case End Appears Close; Nothing to Raise Hope to End Strike

By Norman Walker
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(P)—A quick wind up of the government's contempt case against the coal miners union was indicated today when Justice Department lawyers said they had only "about four or five more witnesses."

The attorneys gave out this word shortly before reconvening of the trial (at 1:30 p. m. EST) before Federal Judge Richmond B. Keach.

There was no indication from attorneys for the United Mine Workers as to how long they might want to make their defense. Developments outside the court room contained nothing to raise hopes for an end to the strike and a halt to the spread of misery from the coal famine.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 28—(P)—The soft coal strike hammered mercilessly at the national economy today with steel plants laying off additional thousands.

The total idle in the three-week full scale walkout now is well past the half million mark. That includes 372,000 coal miners and 184,000 in other industries.

Rebellious diggers show no signs of weakening in their determined stand against working without a contract.

An estimated 40,000 workers in the Birmingham area are reported unemployed, mostly as a result of coal shortages.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
Top Politicos Figure on Farmers' Revolt

WASHINGTON.—A slow fire burning across the Midwest prairies will stir the biggest rum-pus in the 81st Congress and decide the 1950 elections. This is the opinion of ranking politicians on both sides of the aisle.

The fire is a rank-and-file farmers' revolt against the sliding scale of parity payments which was jammed through Congress by the powerful Farm Bureau Federation plus a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Signs of the revolt are: No. 1—A poll among Iowa hog farmers taken by Wallace's Farmer, which revealed 45 per cent favor the Brannan plan of direct government payments to farmers, while letting fall the prices to the consumer. Thirty-five per cent are back of the present system of the government buying and storing surpluses to keep prices up. The remainder could not decide. This is a gain of 11 per cent in eight months for the Brannan idea.

Commented one hog farmer, "let the price drop. Maybe some poor folks could have a little meat—especially children. Let's not store pork and have it wasted."

This poll was taken in the home state of Allan Kline, Farm Bureau president, who is bitterly fighting the Brannan plan. Kline boasts "when an Iowa hog sees me, he curls his tail."

Sign No. 2—In North Dakota, Sen. Bill Langer and the non-partisan league, are preparing to leave the Republican party in favor of the Brannan plan. A major farm authority in the Dakotas, editor William Ronald of Mitchell, S. D., has been frantically urging the GOP leadership to write a new farm policy.

Sign No. 3—A grass-roots farmers' meeting in Crawford county, Wis., recently turned into a debate on the Brannan plan. Before the debate, 75 were for the plan, 45 against, and 92 didn't know. After the debate, 103 voted pro, 45 against, and 47 still undecided.

Sign No. 4—Democratic women at the Jefferson-Jackson dinner reported that the question they most wanted data on was the Brannan plan. Its author, Secretary of Agriculture Charley Brannan, got more applause than anyone at the $100-a-plate dinner except Truman.

Sign No. 5—Chairman Harold Cooley of the House Agriculture committee, noticeably unenthusiastic about the Brannan plan last year, recently told the Farm Bureau of North Carolina, his home state: "Either come up with something better than the Brannan plan, or stop standing in the way." Gov. Kerr Scott of N.C., a former state commissioner of agriculture, is on record for the plan.

Fear Income Drop

Back of the farm revolt is an estimated drop of five to six billion dollars in farm income, the fear that farmers' income will drop further under the sliding-scale formula backed by the Farm Bureau, and mounting criticism of piled-up surpluses while food prices remain high in the grocery stores.

Here are some comparisons in surplus food costs: In a Washington suburb one school is using free surplus butter to cook with, while the price in the grocery is 77 cents a pound. Surplus potatoes are being sold by the government at 1 cent per 100 pounds, while selling at retail 10 pounds for 45 cents. Surplus dried eggs are given away to any credited welfare agency which will haul them away in 150-pound barrels or the equivalent of 450 dozen eggs. Eggs are selling in Washington stores at 47 cents a dozen.

Radioactive Congressman

Able Congressman Henry M. Jackson of Washington had a nerve-racking experience recently when he visited the Hanford, Wash. atomic energy plant.

As he left the project, Jackson was placed in front of a machine for a routine examination to determine whether he had picked up any radiation poisoning during his visit. Jackson's left hand showed no reaction, but when he placed his right hand under the machine the radioactivity counter skyrocketed. Security officials, immediately fearful, were ready to rush the Congressman to the hospital for blood plasma—the only treatment known for radiation poisoning. But when he stripped to the waist, they heaved a sigh of relief. What had set the radioactivity counter off so violently was only the radium dial on Jackson's watch.

Gas Tycoon Kerr's Proposals Could Hike Natural Gas Price

WASHINGTON.—(NEA)—Richest U. S. senator is said to be Democrat Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma. He was born in a log cabin, rose to become his state's first native-born governor and its Democratic national committeeman. He was a keynoter at the 1944 Democratic National Convention in Chicago and a vice-presidential possibility until President Roosevelt gave the nod to Harry S. Truman.

Senator Kerr's fortune has been rated at $10,000,000—all of it made in the last 25 years and most of it made in the oil and gas business of the southwest. In spite of his wealth, Senator Kerr has been considered a New Dealer.

All this lends more than usual interest to Senator Kerr's sponsorship of amendments to the Natural Gas Act of 1938, now before Congress. His principal amendment would remove from rate-fixing regulation of the Federal Power Commission all "independent" natural gas producers, if they sell "at arm's length" to interstate pipelines and distributing companies, and if they don't sell direct to consumers.

Eighty per cent of all U. S. natural gas is now produced by companies which would qualify as regulation-exempt "independents" under the Kerr amendments.

Asserting that the real purpose of these amendments is to "triple the price of natural gas in most parts of the United States, Charles H. Rhyne, Washington representative of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, estimates that if the Kerr amendments become law, "the total increase in dollars paid by consumers will amount to more than $200,000,000 a year on a nation-wide basis."

Rhyne says further that, "The Kerr bill is certain to increase the price of natural gas by more than five cents per thousand cubic feet (wholesale) and this increase assures Kerr of at least $50,000,000 in profits before taxes." He bases this figure on an estimate that the present value of the 900 billion cubic feet of natural gas reserves now held by the Kerr-McGee Oil Producing Co., Inc., of which the senator is president, is $100,000,000.

Main arguments for passage of the Kerr amendments are that they would clear up the law and free independent natural gas producers from bureaucratic controls of the Federal Power Commission. The situation within the FPC is a story in itself. But for the present it is enough to note that natural gas producers are reluctant to sell gas from their wells because of their fear of FPC rate regulation.

In opposition to these claims, municipal officials point out that the building of natural gas pipelines from the southwest to the mid-west, to New York and Boston, and to California, has enabled all producers to sell gas at prices which yield them substantial profit. Now that these cities are dependent on natural gas, it is claimed that the producers want to jack up the price. And in this battle, there is nobody to protect the consumers' interests.

Evidence for this argument is cited in the case of Detroit. Since 1945, the "independent" Phillips Petroleum Co. has tripled the price on gas it sells to the pipeline and distributing companies serving Detroit. Proposals for proportionate rate increases to Detroit consumers are now before Federal Power Commission. Mr. Rhyne estimates that if FPC can take jurisdiction over the Detroit case, price increases can be cut down one half.

The relationship between Senator Kerr and Phillips Petroleum is not without interest. Phillips first hired Kerr, then a lawyer and small-time drilling contractor to win Oklahoma City approval to drill wells in the city limits. After successfully conducting this campaign in city elections, Kerr got contracts to drill wells for Phillips.

Kerr's partner in Kerr-McGee is D. H. McGee, former chief geologist for Phillips. Standard Statistics reports that in 1948 Kerr-McGee had an interest in 521 producing oil wells and 74 gas wells.

Moody's Financial Manual puts Kerr-McGee revenues for 1948 at $12,538,058 and net profit at $1,366,464. Yet Kerr-McGee is tiny compared to Phillips, which is rated the largest natural gas producer in the country, with reserves of 15 trillion cubic feet. A five-cent-per-thousand price increase on this would be worth $750,000,000.

Kerr-McGee alone, and in partnership with Phillips, sell natural gas to five interstate pipeline distributors, according to Federal Power Commission records. The two companies are also associated in developing Gulf of Mexico tidelands leases off Louisiana.

"Oil and Gas Journal" is authority that the combined Kerr-McGee-Phillips 45 leases cover nearly 170,000 acres. Their first two tidelands producing wells, put down jointly with Standard Oil and Gas, 85 miles southwest of New Orleans, tapped a 200-million-barrel oil reserve.

This brief summary of holdings indicates Senator Kerr's personal interest in the Natural Gas Act amendments he is proposing.

HOW NOT TO DEAL WITH RESENTMENTS

We have seen how disruptive resentments and hate are to the total person. If we are to live abundantly, we must get rid of them at all costs. But how?

First of all, we must look at some of the ways we are not to use in getting rid of our hates and resentments. (1) We must not suppress them into forgetfulness and try to act as though we no longer have them. This treatment drives them only into the subconscious mind where they work as unconscious resentments. There they will produce conflict and disturbance, the person scarcely knowing what is causing the upset. He will be under nervous strain and will probably lay his upset to all sorts of causes—everything except the real cause. To suppress the resentments does not get rid of them, for then they simply work their havoc at deeper and more dangerous levels. No one can play tricks on life and escape the consequences. He must bring the resentments to the surface and face them honestly, with no subterfuges, no evasions, no suppressions. He must not push his resentments down into the subconscious mind.

(2) If we avoid suppression, we must not try the contrary method—that of expressing our hatreds and resentments. Some psychiatrists prescribe this way, lest suppression set up a complex in the subconscious; and there is no doubt that we can get temporary relief by giving the other person "a piece of our mind."

A young lady who had been tense and frustrated came away from a telephone quite relieved and elated after having just told someone just what she thought of him. Her outburst did relieve dammed-up resentments. A woman who had pains, first at the base of her spine, then in the middle of her back, and then between her shoulder blades, was asked by her doctor what it was that was bothering her inwardly. To which question she blurted out, "Well, I think I'd be well if I could tell my husband just once to go to—!" Perhaps she would have been relieved momentarily, but the resentments would fill up again and be ready for another spill-over. No; expression is not the remedy—it is merely dealing with a symptom instead of with the disease.

O God, my heavenly Father, I am dealing with something too devastating to try to heal it lightly or to temporize. Help me to go to the roots and find release there. But I will need more than Thy help—I will need Thy grace. Help me to take Thy grace for this task. Amen.

Don't Try to Force College Education on Your Daughter

"Our daughter, who finishes high school in June, is determined to go to work instead of going to college as her father and I have planned for her to do for years.

"Above all else, we want to give her a college education. But she isn't the least bit interested."

A distressed parent wrote the above to me. I can understand your bitter disappointment, of course. And the saddest part of it is that your daughter may one day regret not taking advantage of the opportunity you are offering her. But you can't just "give" a college education to your daughter.

If you've failed in all your efforts to make her see that an opportunity to get a good education is the best gift you can give her, then trying to force her to take the gift won't do much good. For the final showdown, she has to educate herself. If she's just plain not interested in doing that, you can't force it.

Sell Her On Some Kind Of Training

But, since she is interested in getting a job, you ought to be able to sell her on the idea of going to business college and fitting herself for business competition. She'll quickly find out that without any business training the jobs she can get are few and far between and that her chances of going ahead are pretty slim.

If you can get her to finish a business course you will at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you have given her some security for the future.

Above all, don't feel that you have failed because your daughter refuses to fall in with the plans you have made for her. That is a risk all parents take when they plan ahead for their children.

However wise their planning, no parents can ever count on their children to fulfill the roles that have been laid out for them. But even when the children refuse to co-operate it may work out for the best. For children are sometimes more realistic than their parents about their own aptitudes and abilities.

FINGERPRINTS Don't Lie

All characters and events in this story are fictitious and any resemblance to real characters or real events is purely coincidental.

"He was going to have a heart-to-heart talk with my father," Azalea said. "Heaven only knows what might happen."

Her cheek was on one upflitted knee and the curve of her back was an arch of beauty. She was a melody in flesh.

But now her enchanting symmetry portrayed complete unhappiness.

Nadine was mystified. Never before in all their friendship had she seen Azalea Palmer so clenched and crushed. She said:

"What's the matter, baby?" "Oh, nothing, nothing!" Azalea answered as one does when "nothing" means "everything."

A bit miffed by the rebuff, Nadine bridled:

"You mean it's none of my business?" Azalea shook her woeful head inconsolably.

Nadine was one of those innumerable people who curiously believe that the best way to console people in distress is to belittle their grief and scold them out of it. Nadine had an averagely good heart and was deeply fond of Azalea; but she clung to the ancient idiosyncrasy that wealthy people should be immune to sorrow.

So she scolded:

"Really, honey, you'd better see a psychiatrist. You haven't been happy for months. And look at what you've got! Why, if I had your youth and beauty, and wealth—my God, I'd call myself the luckiest woman on earth. What have you got to pout about? You ought to be happy. You've no right to be blue."

"THAT'S funny! That's screamingly funny!" And Azalea almost smiled when she said it. "Be happy because you ought to be! That's good! That's great! Be happy because you're rich. But what can money buy? My father says my money—or the prospect of it—has brought me a suitor that loves my money, not me. So my father is determined to save me from my happiness. Barbs

One thing seldom happens to us in America, anyway. They don't often broadcast bagpipe music.

Have you noticed winter's new slant on the bit-and-run—or haven't you been smacked by a snowball yet?

Social Events

Starting with a quotation: "The world is so full of a number of things—I am sure we should all be as happy as kings" Mrs. H. U. Campbell, speaking before Sorosis Monday afternoon on the subject: "Interesting People I have met" stated she thought that might be what is wrong with us today. The gaining of things leads to an endless chase after happiness and peace. The world is filled with things, she said, until we don't really know what we want. She likened it to an over crowded store window in which are so many things that you can't see anything particular in the window that looks worth while.

Things really mean very little, Mrs. Campbell said, it is the people that really make life and those who know the most people are the richest. Shakespeare wrote that life is a stage and we, the players, walk across it, the speaker said, and she told of the important part played by women.

Know What They Want

Women, she said, know what they want and go after it. You can't defeat a man whose wife has courage and stated that with men having the same training and same opportunities one may go farther than the other because he has a wife with courage although she may not be an outstanding person in some minds. A woman must have a sense of humor, the speaker said, and told of the woman who said her husband would buy her a fur coat or anything in the world she wanted but he wouldn't pass her the salt at the table. Another woman realized that having the table set had a wonderful effect on her husband and she always managed to get the table set even if dinner was a long way from being ready. Happiness, Mrs. Campbell pointed out, is a great beautifier—it makes you pretty. You should think lovely things, she said, be full of love, use beauty aids and this she insisted you should do because other people have to look at you—and if you have no inward beauty you are just sunk.

Mrs. Campbell selected several women as interesting people she had known. The first was Mary, a short little woman with a sweet smile born in 1830 in Kentucky. She came to Missouri and lived at Georgetown before Sedalia was started. Mary, she said had so many sayings and superstitions such as bad luck to cut your fingernails on Friday or to sweep the floor after dark. The latter, Mrs. Campbell said she agreed on, if she hadn't got her floor swept by dark she thought it would be just as well to let it go. Mary, she said always wore aprons, her dress up aprons being white with lace trim. She was very clean and when there was illness anywhere she always had a drawer of clean garments and clean bandages and Mary turned nurse. She later lived in a red brick house in Windsor built the last year of the Civil war and there still it stands surrounded by trees and flowers just as she had them then.

Another Type

Another woman Mrs. Campbell told of was Onetta, who was born in Wales later coming to Minnesota, and there guarded her home from the Indians. She was married at 15 and gave birth to 11 children, rearing only four of them. Her home was furnished with early American furniture and on the floors were rag carpets laid over two inches of soft straw. She was a progressive woman, Mrs. Campbell said, and then added "Mary and Onetta were my grandmothers."

In telling of her grandmothers and their way of life Mrs. Campbell reminded her audience that those busy women who had few things found so much time for gracious living—a charm which we of today seem to have lost. Most women, she said, are good—but good for what—selfish living and daily amusements. Even grandmothers of today don't have time to be baby sitters and when parents go out they have to get a baby sitter and pay them, she said. "Who used to do the baby sitting?" she asked did your parents ever have a baby sitter for you? and then she went on to tell how the parents today wanted to go out evenings and somebody had to stay with the children. Mrs. Campbell said that she often received calls from children asking if she knew where their daddy and mommy were—sometimes they said it was homework, but Mrs. Campbell, knowing children, knows that it is loneliness.

There are many people in mental institutions today, Mrs. Campbell said, and ventured the thought that it might be caused from too many things. When the first youth is gone and you reach 30 it seems terrible, then 40 and when you're 50 it just breaks your heart, she said, you overeat, over rush, get restless and unhappy and want to go places, but the years shouldn't make you unhappy, she said, there are many people who do their greatest work after 50 because then they have more time. But, she said, it is not the things you do but the life you lived—and it may be later than you think. It may be time to light the fires, perhaps the spiritual fires, the speaker said, and then added, "I do not know about your life, I am too busy looking after myself. I am not sure of my own."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Philip M. McLaughlin and Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman presided over the meeting.

Mrs. James McNeil announced the program for next week will be M. Graham Clark, Jr., vice president of the School of the Ozarks at Point Lookout. A luncheon for Mrs. Campbell preceded the meeting.

You Can Figure Out the Odds on Having Children of All One Sex in Your Family

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

People often wonder why three or four or even more children in one family are all boys or all girls. Here is a question on that subject:

Q—I have five children, all girls. What are the chances that the next child would be a boy?

P. R. W.
A—About half of all children born are boys and about half are girls. All of the evidence which we have indicates that the sex is determined at the time of fertilization. These two factors mean that there is a 50/50 chance that the next child would be another girl.

The possibilities of having all boys or all girls are interesting. If there are three children in the family, the chances are that they will all be of one sex in one family out of eight. If there are nine children in a family, there is only one chance in 512 that they will all be of the same sex. The 50/50 sex ratio for each birth merely makes it necessary to calculate mathematically the chances for families of various sizes having children all of one sex.

Q—Does a person with premature gray hair tend to develop grayness more rapidly during pregnancy and what could be done for it?

A—I have never heard any scientific reason why the hair should gray more rapidly during pregnancy, and I doubt that it happens often. If it does, I know of nothing that can be done about it.

Q—Is there a cure for bad breath caused by food not digesting properly?
G. E. F.
A—The most common causes for bad breath are conditions in the mouth itself, such as pyorrhea or excessive smoking. Some foods, such as onions or garlic, produce an unpleasant odor to the breath because they are eliminated through the lungs. This does not mean, however, that such foods are not digesting properly.

Q—What I can't understand is why after eating I get heart palpitations. My heart has been checked and I have been told it is all right.
M. G.
A—It is possible that you are merely conscious of your heart after eating. This happens quite often, particularly to nervous people. It is also possible that you are getting "extra systoles," which are extra beats of the heart. Many people have these extra beats but they do not ordinarily mean that heart disease or anything serious is present.

Q—Please discuss Paget's disease.
H. A. Z.

A—Unfortunately, there are two kinds of Paget's disease—one of the breast and the other of the bone. They are entirely unrelated except for carrying the same name.

Q—I was told I have sciatic neuritis. I'm 30 years old. At times I can hardly walk. Will you please tell me if this is dangerous or not?

A—A nerve runs down the back of the legs, called the sciatic nerve. A number of conditions can cause pain in the area to which this nerve runs, and this is called sciatic. Pure sciatic neuritis is inflammation of the nerve itself. This can come from a variety of causes which have to be tracked down in each individual case. The condition is always painful and while not dangerous to life, it can and often is crippling and distressing.

R. T.

A—Port wine has probably been prescribed for centuries as a sort of tonic for those convalescing from disease or operation. Its value is somewhat uncertain, and some doctors prescribe it and some do not. It is not specific for any one disease.

Minus Scores Are a Possibility

By William E. McKenney
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

Here is a question from one of my readers which asks if you can put your opponent in the red. My answer should give you a good tip on how to do just that.

Q. An odd situation came up the other night. It was the first hand of the evening. Our opponents had drawn a red trey and put it down on the table, but before they could make an initial meld, we went out. The opponents had a total of 260 points in their combined hands; so I said they were minus 260 plus 100 for the red trey they had on the table, or a total minus score of 360 points.

The opponents claimed that this was ridiculous. They said you could not be minus in Canasta—in other words, you could not take away points that they did not have. They pointed out that the score sheets have spaces for basic meld and total scores, but no place for a minus score. Who was correct?

A. You were correct. Tell your friends to look at law 15 in the Official Canasta Laws of the National Canasta Laws Commission. They will find that we consider a minus score even for initial melds. This law states that with a minus score, the points needed for an initial meld are zero. The lowest point requirement for an initial meld is 50 and that applies when the score is 0 to 1495.

One of the real thrills of the game is to catch the opponents with two or three red treys on the table. This often happens when they need 120 for their initial meld, and they are then minus not only the value of the cards in their hands, but minus also 100 points each for their red treys. I have seen a partnership caught with four red treys down on the table, with the other side going out before they could make an initial meld; and of course, they were minus 800 points plus the value of the cards in their hands. This situation frequently reduces a plus score to a minus score.

Q. Here is a question that comes in almost every day in one form or another. You have a completed canasta and the opponents discard a card that matches your canasta. Many players claim that you cannot take that card.

A. It is true that some people actually play Canasta that way. The idea originated through a misinterpretation of some early writings on Canasta, to the effect that if the pack was frozen and a player had a completed canasta, he could feel fairly safe in discarding a card matching his canasta.

Possibly some writers even neglected to mention that this was true particularly if the pack was frozen. From this some players took it for granted that a discard that matches a canasta acts as a stop card for the pack. This is not the case, but it is certainly more difficult for the other side to pick up such a card, especially when the pack is frozen.

50-Year Treaty Signed Monday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The United States and Canada signed Monday a new 50-year treaty to safeguard the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and increase power output of the Niagara river.

The agreement calls for fixed minimum flow of water at all seasons and for engineering measures to prevent the coastline from breaking away and flattening out the falls, and to distribute the flow of water evenly.

All remaining water may be diverted for power purposes and shared equally between the two countries. Placing the diversion on a permanent legal foundation is calculated to permit the "long overdue redevelopment of the power potential of the river" and the generation of "far more energy" at the falls than now. Canada currently used more of such water than this country, officials said.

Husband Tells Story of Wife's Last Illness

By Henry L. Supple

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 28 — (P) — The husband of Mrs. Abbie Borroto said today his dying wife was treated like a mother by Dr. Hermann N. Sander.

The 41-year-old Dr. Sander is on trial on a first degree murder charge — accused of ending the woman's cancer-tortured life with an air injection into her veins.

Reginald Borroto, the 65-year-old husband, testified as to his wife's last illness.

"If Mrs. Borroto had been Dr. Sander's mother or sister he could not have done more to minister to her."

Borroto, a retired oil salesman, said Dr. Sander came often to his home during the last months of his wife's life.

Borroto added that the doctor often appeared voluntarily, bringing such gifts to the ailing woman as a canary, complete with cage, and other little offerings to take her mind off her misery.

Called Often

Dr. Sander called at all hours of the day, Borroto said, and sometimes as late as 10 o'clock at night.

Under cross-examination, Borroto said:

"On various occasions, Dr. Sander appeared very tired. In fact, on one occasion I told him he was a fool spending so much time working on committees outside of his office hours."

On taking the stand, Borroto was asked by Phinney:

"Was Mrs. Borroto a woman of determination?"

"Definitely," replied the slender widower.

Q. Did she have the will to live?

A. Very much so.

Kindly Feeling

Later, Borroto testified "if he (Dr. Sander) was my own brother I couldn't feel more kindly toward him."

The dead woman's husband made this comment after defense lawyer Ralph Langdell asked him whether he was friendly with the accused doctor and whether he had been to the Sander home for dinner.

Telling the story of his wife's illness, Borroto said Dr. Sander thought it best she go to the hospital.

On the night of Dec. 3 — the night before Mrs. Borroto died — her husband said Dr. Sander telephoned him and said he did not expect her to live through the night.

Borroto said the doctor told him she had lost the power of speech — "that she could whisper but I couldn't understand her."

Held Her Hand

"I sat at her bedside and held her hand," Borroto said.

Borroto said his 19-year-old daughter, Elise, stayed with some friends that night "because I did not want her to be alone."

"After you learned of your wife's death did you return to the hospital?" Langdell asked.

"No sir," he replied.

Q. On Dec. 29 when Dr. Sander was arrested were you in Manchester?

A. Yes, I was.

When Borroto left the witness stand he looked in Dr. Sander's direction as he walked from the courtroom.

Had Prior Operation

Borroto, testified that before his wife was stricken with cancer she had undergone a thyroid operation.

He said it was after this operation that he met Dr. Sander, who had been an associate of the operating surgeon.

Borroto, a slight man wearing glasses, spoke softly but distinctly as he told the judge and jury

Important Events In World News

MOSCOW, Feb. 28 — (P) — The Soviet Union in sweeping price reductions tonight set a new rate for the ruble — four rubles to the dollar instead of 5.30.

At the same time it revalued the ruble in gold and foreign currencies.

"The currency reform in the U.S.S.R. carried out in December, 1947, liquidated the consequences of the second world war in the field of currency circulation and re-established the full value of the Soviet ruble," the decree said.

"The abolition of the ration system which was carried out at the same time as currency reform and important lowering of prices for goods of mass consumption, which was carried out three times from 1947 to 1950, led to still further strengthening of the ruble, to an increase of its buying power and to an increase of its rate in relation to foreign currency."

"At the same time in Western countries there took place and is continuing to take place the loss of value of currencies."

The price cuts will be effective tomorrow.

Typical price cuts cited in percentages were:

Beef 24, flour 25, beer 30, potatoes 10, cotton textiles 15, woolen textiles 12, butter 30, cheese 20, black caviar 30, chocolate sweets 20, cognac 25, salt, 40, dessert wines 49.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 — (P) — Secretary of State Acheson told senators today "I would never knowingly tolerate any disloyal person in the department of state."

Acheson told the Senate Appropriations committee that he did not and does not condone in any way the offenses charged against Alger Hiss, former State Department official.

Hiss was convicted of lying about contacting an admitted Communist courier who said he obtained secret State Department papers from Hiss.

FRANK FURT, Germany, Feb. 28 — (P) — The United States challenged Russia to day to agree to elections throughout all Germany, possibly Oct. 15, on the basis of free balloting.

Oct. 15 is the date the Russians have set for an election in the Soviet-sponsored East German peoples' republic.

The proposal was made by the U.S. high commissioner, John J. McCloy. But he indicated the United States would take no initiative in organizing such an election.

his wife's normal weight was about 140 pounds before she began to waste.

Asks Court To Reconsider

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 28 — (P) — Pioneer News Service A. Louis Horse Racing News commission, asked the Missouri Supreme Court today to reconsider whether a circuit judge has a right to enter its case.

Two weeks ago the state's highest court said Circuit Judge James F. Nangle of St. Louis had no jurisdiction in Pioneer's three-year-old fight to supply quick horse race news.

The attorney for Pioneer, Morris A. Shenker, said in his plea for a new hearing that the court made some errors in its decision.

He argued that Judge Nangle was merely upholding the ruling of the State Public Service Commission in the long drawn out case. And besides, Shenker contended, the high court's recent decision was in conflict with one of its own earlier rulings.

Pioneer had sued Southwestern Bell Telephone company a year ago in Judge Nangle's court, asking $100,000 damages and permanent continuance of its telephone connections.

School Revival Still Alive

WILMORE, Ky., Feb. 28 — (P) — Asbury college students resumed classes today — their thoughts on the religious revival kept alive in the nearby chapel by the growing enthusiasm of townspeople and outsiders.

School authorities had planned to halt the meeting at midnight last night but reversed their decision after about 1,600 persons packed the building.

Since last Thursday morning, hundreds of students have filed into the auditorium to offer testimonials and prayers. Others meditated and prayed in their dormitories. No classes have been held during the continuous meeting.

Dean J. B. Kenyon said last night's attendance was the largest he ever had seen on the campus. Every seat was taken. Aisles and lobbies were jammed. Those who couldn't get into the chapel stood outside awaiting their turn.

Wilmore residents predominated at the session.

Captain Takes Responsibility

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 28 — (P) — Capt. William D. Brown, commanding officer of the battleship Missouri,

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The British electorate's action in slaying the big labor (Socialist) parliamentary majority to a mere whisper means, I take it, that England found herself too far to the left politically and moved to readjust the situation.

The country — normally a bit "left of center" — has made an effort to swing back to her old position. This move obviously involves a rebuke to the Socialist government by some voters who felt it had overreached its mandate in carrying out its program.

The electorate's purpose was emphasized by the smashing defeat dealt out to the Communist and left-wing labor independents. The Communists put 100 candidates into the field, including their two Red members of Commons, and every mother's son of them was defeated. The same thing happened to all five left-wing labor independents who had fought the regular party program by advocating closed relations with Russia.

Majority Too Small

However, in the energetic process of readjustment the electorate has produced an indecisive result so far as concerns the position in parliament. The Socialist government's majority of ten votes overall is neither fish, fowl nor good Red meat. It's far too small for security.

A few cases of illness simultaneously, or absence of labor members on government business, could lay the party open to defeat on some measure. As Conservative leader Winston Churchill put it:

"It's obvious that parliament is going to be in a very unstable condition."

And over in West Germany chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who commands a parliamentary coalition with a majority of only one, remarked:

"I would not like to be a minister with this (British Socialist) majority. It might be a very wobbly chair."

To "Carry On"

"Wobbly" is right, but prime minister Clement Attlee and his supporters have decided that the best thing to do is to "carry on" for the time being. The alternative would be the holding of another general election right away, which would put the country under a heavy strain.

So as things now stand, Attlee will accept the mandate and go ahead until fate overtakes him. That will call for the treading of a straight and narrow path and the avoidance of highly controversial legislation.

This parliamentary situation is a particularly unhappy one, coming as it does when the government is faced with far-reaching decisions as regards both home and foreign affairs. Paramount is the fierce economic crisis in which England is involved. Coupled with this is the fact that she is a key figure in the western leadership of the cold war. This is found to cause concern in the capitals of all the western democracies.

Situation Is Delicate

Because of the great delicacy of this situation, informed officials in London say they expect that the Conservatives and the Socialists will make an informal agreement to keep major questions of foreign policy outside their warfare. As a matter of fact, there has been a large degree of bipartisanship in the handling of important foreign affairs ever since the Socialists took over from the Conservatives in 1945.

Parliament will reassemble on March 6 when King George will deliver the speech from the throne, outlining the government's program. The first major issue, so far as one can foresee, will be the budget which is due to be introduced in April. This might easily produce a battle, involving as it does a vast expenditure, of which one-fifth has been going for defense.

A Major Issue

Whether the government will dare raise the question of further nationalization of industry is much in doubt at this writing, since it is one of the most controversial items on the Socialist program. Nationalization of the great iron and steel industry is foremost in this category. Legislation already has been enacted for this but it still has to be made effective. One would expect the Conservatives to make a major issue of that.

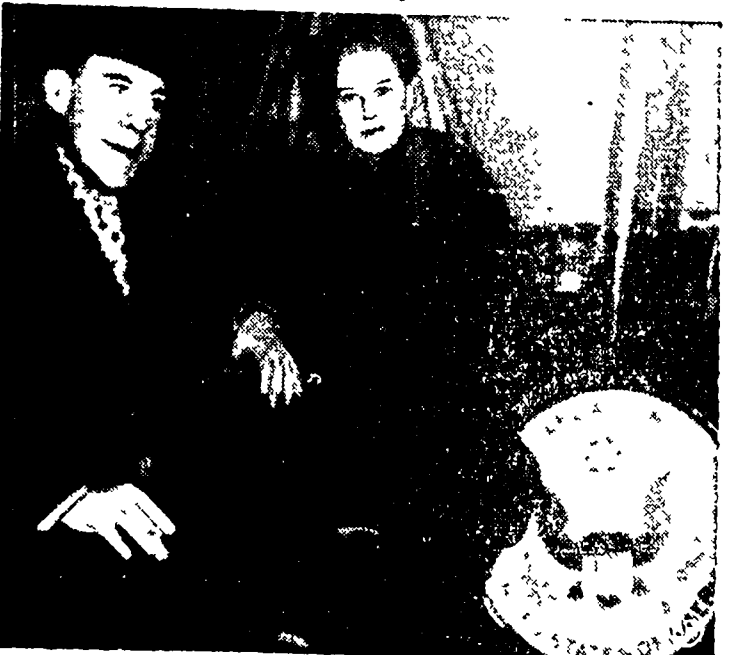

In any event, political prophets cannot see a protracted life for the new government. They expect a fresh election before long.

Ban Travel By U. S. Citizens

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—(P)—The United States followed up its break in diplomatic relations with Communist Bulgaria Monday by banning all travel or private American citizens to that country.

Give Your Support! Pettis County Red Cross Drive Starts Tomorrow!

HOW MUCH IS ONE RESCUE WORTH?

A tiny hand above the water. Then slowly, slowly it sinks. But there is time—still time—if only someone is near, someone who knows what to do. A twelve-year-old boy, a woman, an old man—anyone, if only he knows.

And the wonderful thing is that there are millions who do know what to do and how to do it. Last year alone, you—through your Red Cross—made it possible to train more than a half-million people in water safety. Another 56,600 were authorized as instructors in water safety and first aid. It is estimated that 18,000,000 have had training in first aid and water safety through your Red Cross.

Many of these people are able to save human life—priceless human life. How much is this ability worth? It's hard to say—unless it is someone you love who has been rescued.

Your contributions to your Red Cross can help carry on this training program, help take it to new areas that need it. Give now—it may save a life sooner than you think.

You, too, can help

Monkeyshines In the World Of Animals

By the Associated Press

There were a lot of week-end monkeyshines in the animal kingdom.

And the wild leopard on the loose in Oklahoma kept the antics going.

The beast had terrorized a large part of the city and countryside during the weekend.

Various other furred and feathered friends and foes of man got into the news.

For instance—a cat that dined with a mouse, another cat that caused an auto to squeak, a fox strangled by a boy who lost his cocker spaniel pet, and seagulls foolish enough to get in the way of an airliner.

An animal story began in Morristown, N. J., last week when twelve-year-old Theodore Lovenberg choked a fox to death with his hands "because he was gonna bite Boots."

The boy explained that "Boots" was "a little ole black cocker spaniel who followed me around all the time."

But it developed yesterday that "Boots" really was "Mustard," and had an owner.

The owner called "Mustard" as the dog followed the boy, and a great friendship was broken up—but only partly.

"Mustard's" owner said Theodore can visit the dog. And the boy is going to get a $3 bounty from the authorities for the fox's ears.

Fifty seagulls went to that land where good seagulls go, due to their poor judgment yesterday at Columbia airport, Portland, Ore. Several hundred gulls were resting on the runway when a United Air Lines plane set down. The roar scared the gulls into flight.

In addition to the dead gulls, there were dents and cracks in the plane as they came in contact.

Cat-and-mouse dinner dates came to light in Plainville, Conn. Mrs. Alice Curtis had depended on her cat, Tony, to handle a mouse that she knew was invading her kitchen. She set out a saucer of milk for the cat — and was quite surprised when the mouse walked in and the cat moved over so they both could drink.

Indianapolis produced the story of Jungle Baby, a black cat which disappeared nine days ago from the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Oyler.

A mysterious squeak developed in the family car at the same time that the cat vanished.

Jungle Baby — unhurt but hungry — was found wedged between a wheel spring and the muffler.

Sammy, a black tomcat, took refuge in a clump of 50-foot palm trees when he was chased by a bigger and older tomcat two weeks ago at Phoenix, Ariz.

Sammy, the pet of three-year-old Mike Pryor, refused to come down. He won't be enticed by food and can't be snared by firemen on ladders. He just pecks out once in a while to let the gathered crowds know he still is up there protecting his nine lives.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 28—(AP)—The U. S. embassy reported Monday a naturalized American was sentenced to a year in a Slovak labor camp for saying "in America we throw away better food than they eat in Czechoslovakia."

The citizen who was visiting relatives in Topolciany, Slovakia, was identified as Imrich Solar, 56, of New York City. It was said he was of Slovak origin.

S-C Tigers Enter State Meet Tonight

Opponents Will Be Springfield At 8:25 O'clock

The Smith-Cotton Tigers will enter the race for the state class A basketball crown, along with 15 other Missouri high school teams. The Tiger's first round opponents tonight at 8:25 o'clock, at Columbia, will be the Senior High Bulldogs of Springfield.

The Tigers moved into the state tournament by downing the Boonville cagers last Friday to take the regional crown, while the Springfield squad moved into the state meet by defeating the defending state champions, Buffalo 41 to 23 Saturday. Sedalia's Tigers by virtue of their wins in the regional, now have a 23-4 mark for the year.

Hannibal Is Favorite

The strong Hannibal Pirates probably rate the favorite role in the state tourney, as they are the only remaining undefeated class "A" team left in the state. The Pirates have downed the Tigers three times this year, twice by two-point margins of 40-38 and 39-37 and the other by a 53-44 count. The Tigers, should they meet the Pirates in the state tourney will be hoping that the fourth time will be the charm. With Hannibal the winner, and Sedalia the runner up in the six-team CEMO conference, the home conference has one of the best representations in the state.

Springfield Is Tall

The Bulldog aggregation from Springfield will have a decided height advantage over the S-C team, but the home town boys hope to have more hustle and fight to overcome the advantage. The star of the Bulldog team is their towering center, Ray Birdsong, who stands six feet seven inches tall. He led the team through the current year and is only a junior. The battle between him and Sedalia's excellent center, Bill Holst, should be a major part, decide the contest. The other probable starters on the Springfield squad are: Bill Abney, guard and stands 6 feet; Frank Kirby, the other guard, who also hits the six foot mark; Don Wheeler, forward, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall and the final starter is Taylor Hanson only 5' 10". The Springfield squad is a very good defensive club and if the Tigers can start hitting the bucket they should win. Springfield will probably be the Tiger's toughest foe between the semi-finals or even the finals.

If Sedalia's Tigers get by Springfield, they will play the winner of the Saint Joe Benton-Clinton contest in the quarter-finals Thursday afternoon. If they win that tilt they would play in the semi-finals Friday night and the finals Saturday.

Tigers Average 51.3 Points

After the regions, the Tigers average has dropped only one-tenth of a point, as they maintain a high 51.3 point average for the season. In making this average, the Tigers have run up 1,386 points for the whole year in winning 23 of their 27 games. In the game 27 games, Sedalia has held their opponents total to 866 points per contest which gives them a "red hot" defensive average of 32.1, which is a drop of 5 points from before the regional.

The scuffle for the boys, whose teams remain in the tourney is packed full of interesting things. On Thursday, the boys will see some basketball pictures and afterward they will tour the campus. On Friday, the boys will have their big day, they will see more pictures in the morning and in the afternoon they will be guests at a student show in the education building auditorium.

Tigers Leave at 12:30

Ten Smith-Cotton Tigers and coaches Ball and Glavin left from the school at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon for the journey to Columbia, where they will have a practice session in Brewer field house where the games will be played. This is to let the boys get used to the court, but more important, to become accustomed to the glass backboards on which none of the high school players have had an opportunity to play on before.

The boys making the trip are: probable starters Walker, Lankena, guards; Holst, center; and forwards, Brown and Ruffin. The reserves making the trip are: McCrary, Morgan, Shawver, Johnson, and Edwards.

Schedules

The schedule for the games in the tourney is: eliminating round today—three games beginning at 7 p.m.; Wednesday 5 games beginning at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.; quarter-finals Thursday, four games beginning at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.; Friday, two games beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the semi-finals and Saturday the finals and third place battle beginning at 8 o'clock. The pairings for the first round are: upper bracket: McBride vs. William Chrisman at 3:25 Wednesday; Lebanon vs. St. Louis University High at 7 p.m. Wednesday; Kirkwood vs. Poplar Bluff at 8:25 Wednesday and Hannibal vs. Flat River at 9:50 Wednesday; in the lower bracket, Clinton vs. St. Joe Benton at 7 o'clock tonight; Smith-Cotton vs. Springfield at 8:25 o'clock tonight; Rockhurst (Kansas City) vs. Crystal City at 9:50 o'clock tonight and Joplin vs. Beaumont (St. Louis) at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Some of the Problems in 16 Big League Camp Sites

28 Knockouts In Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—(P)—The Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, after producing plenty of knockout action among the little guys, moves into big boy competition tonight at the Chicago Stadium.

The four lighter weights — flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweights — battled through 112 bouts before 3,822 at the Chicago Stadium last night.

Tonight, a similar number of bouts in the four top weights — welter, middle, light-heavy and heavyweight — will round out the field for quarterfinal competition at the stadium in all eight classes Wednesday night.

The inaugural session last night, testing the best boxers from 41 different centers in middle, southern and far-western states produced 28 knockouts.

One of the eye-catchers was Cleveland's Emil Lakatos, who stopped two opponents in the 135-pound division.

Team leaders after the four lighter weight division had cleaned up the preliminaries were Nashville, Tenn. with seven points and Cleveland with six points.

U. S. Golfers to British Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(P)—Willie Turnesa and Frank Stranahan, both former champions, will lead Uncle Sam's assault on the British Amateur golf tournament this year.

A half-dozen Americans, including crooner Bing Crosby, have significant intentions of competing at the historic Royal and Ancient club of St. Andrews May 22-27.

Turnesa, who won the British crown in 1947 between a couple of U.S. amateur triumphs, announced this would be his only foreign venture in 1950. The rest of the time, he said, will be concentrated on U.S. events, particularly the Open.

Stranahan, who captured the title in 1948, has designs on both the British Amateur and Open titles.

Other U.S. contenders will be Richard D. Chapman of Pinehurst, N.C., former U.S. Amateur champion; William C. Campbell, the golfing legislator of Huntington, West Va.; Udo Reinach of New York, and George L. Coleman of Miami, Fla.

Coleman is an Oklahoma bank president and a golfing companion of Crosby, who is a three-handicap player of the Bel Air country club in Los Angeles.

Lop-Sided Victories In Cage Tournament

MOBERLY, Mo., Feb. 28—(P)—Lop-sided victories marked the opening games of the state Junior College basketball tournament yesterday.

Moberly and Chillicothe Business College, seeded one-two, showed a terrific scoring punch as all the favorites cleared the first round.

Moberly, the defending champion, battered Monett 83-50, and Chillicothe romped on Conservation College of Iberia 82-56.

Flat River stopped Wentworth 72-48, Jefferson City trounced Mo-Ark Baptist of West Plains 68-54, and Hannibal-LaGrange breezed past Trenton 55-47.

Five more games are booked for today in the five-day event. Wentworth will play Monett at 1:30 p.m. and Conservation College will meet Trenton at 3 p.m. in the consolation bracket.

Quarter-final pairings of the championship bracket: 6 p.m.—Missouri Baptist (Poplar Bluff) vs. Chillicothe. 7:30 p.m.—Jefferson City vs. St. Joseph.

9 p.m.—Hannibal-LaGrange vs. Southwest Baptist (Bolivar).

'Lukewarm' Toward Entering NAIB Meet

SAN JOSE, Calif., Feb. 28—(P)—Athletic Director S. G. Hartman said last night that San Jose State would not attempt to go to the National Invitational basketball tournament at Kansas City this year.

San Jose State defeated Pepperdine the last two years to win the NAIB bid and is logical contender from Northern California again this year.

Hartman said the season already had been long enough and that the players, most of whom have made the two previous trips, were "lukewarm" toward the tournament.

San Jose State, ranked 19th in the nation in the Associated Press weekly poll, has won 18 and lost 7 games this season.

A tournament committee spokesman announced yesterday acceptances had been received from Loras of Dubuque, Ia., and St. Michael's of Burlington, Vt. Siena, Dayton and Baltimore Loyola already had agreed to participate.

March 1 is Opening of Spring Camps

16 Big League Teams Will Start Training

By Frank Eck

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28—(P)—Tomorrow the big leaguers can put their gloves on. Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler says so.

But Chandler made it clear today that the March 1 opening of the spring training camps for the 16 big league teams was brought on by the players themselves and not by the commissioner following his recent directive in which he said, in effect: "No training before March 1."

"It was a shame that some of the players who wanted to train in the middle of February had to leave some camps and return home," said Chandler. "But after baseball gave the players, through their player representatives, a voice in drawing up a new contract in 1946, it was the players who later rebelled against the March 1 training start."

No Jump on Others "I have no objections to an earlier start, the clause as it now stands in each player's contract can be revised. But it is up to the players and should be equal to all. I would not permit one club to get the jump on another. The much discussed March 1 start of training went into effect in 1948. The loudest complaints came from some of the Yankee players during the Larry MacPhail era. In 1946 he flew the Yankees to Panama for February exhibition games and in 1947 the team flew to Puerto Rico, Venezuela and Havana and it was March 10 before they reached the states.

It is now up to the player representatives on each club to find out how the majority of the big leaguers feel.

Good Weather For Trout Opening

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 28—(P)—By the look of things Missouri's eager trout fishermen will enjoy their best opening day in years tomorrow.

The weather forecast is for clear skies and temperatures in the lower forties. That's cool, but not nearly so chilly as it usually is on March 1 in Missouri.

The weather prospect also indicated there will be a record crowd in the three state trout stream parks and the special trout management areas. Some 2,000 are expected.

Last year, the temperature was 25 degrees, well below freezing. In 1948, it rained hard and continuously, getting the fishermen almost as wet as the rainbow trout they sought. In 1947, there was four inches of snow on the ground and more coming down.

The season opens in these areas: Bennett Spring state park near Lebanon, Montauk state park in Dent county and Roaring River state park in Barry county. Part of current river below Montauk park, Greer Springs Branch and a part of Eleven Point river in Oregon county, Maramee Spring Branch in Phelps county, Roundbush Spring Branch in Pulaski county, part of Indian Creek near Stella in Newton and McDonald counties and a posted portion of Dry Creek below the mouth of Westover spring branch in Crawford county.

The daily limit is six trout. Some of those turned into the streams in the past few days range up to four pounds.

Meanwhile as the boys head for camp, 44 players still remained unsigned. This list is topped by Howie Pollett of the Cards, Hal New house of the Tigers and Bob Lemon of the Indians.

Two players came to terms yesterday, Rae Scarborough of the Senators and rookie infielder Al Martin of the Yanks.

Carrasquel to Back up Appling; Others Aid Improved White Sox

CHICAGO — (NEA) — When and if Lucius Benjamin Appling steps down in his 20th year as shortstop for the White Sox, the Chicago Americans' management has a suitable replacement in Alfonso Carrasquel.

"If he can hit within 50 points of his .315 average at Fort Worth, he can play in the big leagues," said general manager Frank Lane, referring to the non-English speaking Venezuelan, who is almost a certainty to stick and be a constant understudy to Luke Appling.

Chico, a cousin of the veteran pitcher Alex Carrasquel, does all his talking with a ball and glove. Only 22, he had little trouble with tough Texas league pitching in 1949, his first year north of the border.

The five-foot 11-inch, 170-lb. right hander is ready to fly, beginning March 1. He spent the winter playing in the South American circuit with his native Caracas.

There is little doubt but that Carrasquel is a sound fielder and the management is now wondering what to do with the 19-year-old costly bonus player from Broken Arrow, Okla., Jim Baumer. Batting a mediocre .218 with Waterloo, Shortstop Baumer is felt to be at least three years away.

Centerfield Wide Open Centerfield is wide open in the Comiskey park, with Gus Zernial a cinch in left and Dave Philley handling right for the sixth place and improving White Sox.

Battling Herbie Adams and Joe Ostrowski will be the newcomers Gerry Scala and Bill Higdon. Scala seems sure to stick. Higdon looked excellent in a short tour with the Pale Hose last summer.

Outfielder Bill Wilson broke a toe, which practically cheated him of an entire year's Triple A experience with Sacramento. Six feet two and 200 pounds, Wilson has established himself as a distance hitter-to-be, especially with his prodigious home run which cleared the 425-foot wall in the Anaheim, Calif., park by several feet.

"We're really going to give that boy a chance this spring," states Jack Onslow. "He just might make it from all I've heard concerning his hitting."

Lean and lanky, with a fast ball that takes off, Bruner fanned 173 Three I league batters winning 13 for his home town, Waterloo.

Right-hander Bill Connelly was drafted from Toledo and is notoriously wild.

Catcher Joe Erazut, 312 with Little Rock, has a good chance to hang on.

Infielder Rocky Krsnich showed he could hit at Memphis with 1 J. B. Woodward, quail; Tom Sen-doules and 20 home runs to go with a .318 mark, but at 22 is probably a year away since Hank Majeski and Floyd Baker will handle third base.

A few new faces and Slugger Zernial operating full time make the present White Sox a steadily improving club in the American league picture.

Glove Man — Non-English-speaking Alfonso Carrasquel does all his talking with a ball and glove.

Arkansas University Senior Is Ready to Play Football BALTIMORE, Feb. 28—(P)—The operation on his bad knee pronounced successful, Lonc Campbell today began a program of exercises designed to get him in shape for his debut with the Baltimore Colts.

The Arkansas University senior, acquired by the Colts in the National-American football league draft, underwent surgery for torn ligaments.

Bennett said Campbell will return to Arkansas within the day or two.

Westminster Team Upset St. Louis

FULTON, Mo., Feb. 28—(P)—Westminster upset Washington University of St. Louis 54-53 in an overtime nonconference basketball game last night.

Dave Silkiner tied the score at 50-50 for Westminster in the last 30 seconds of regular time, then he hit the winning basket in the final 15 seconds of the overtime.

The game was close all the way. Halftime score was 25-25.

Bill Geitz, Westminster, was high scorer with 19 points. Bob Light led Washington with 13.

Westminster's victory avenged a 65-36 beating by Washington in the season opener for both teams at St. Louis.

Conservation Holds Meeting

Several sportsmen and farmers attended the first regular meeting of the newly organized Pettis County Conservation, which was held February 16 at 7:30 p. m. in the basement of Hugie's Tavern, where the organization will again meet March 1 at 7:30 p. m. From then on meetings will be held in the court house.

The meeting was called to order by the president Carl Wollett, who was elected president when the Conservation first organized several weeks ago. At the same time Herman Bloess, Jr., was elected secretary-treasurer.

During the last meeting Bob Bothwell was elected vice president and the following committee heads were named: Pete Courtney, membership; Herman Cook, multiflora rose farm improvement; Jack Bloss, fishing; J. B. Woodward, quail; Tom Sen-doules, hunting; Leonard Carson, social and W. C. Berry, finance.

The regular meeting time was decided by a vote and was set for every other Wednesday, dating from February 16, 1950. Any person interested in hunting and fishing are welcome to join the organization.

The Conservation is non-political, non-profit organization composed of hunters, fishermen, farmers and other citizens interested in the conservation, restoration and wise use of our natural resources.

At the present time there are 56 members in the Pettis county Conservation and several thousand in the Conservation of Missouri.

3 Teams May Shoot For a 'Grand Slam'

By Playing in Invitation And NCAA Tournaments

By Will Grimesley

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(P)—Three teams — Bradley, Kentucky and Duquesne — may shoot for a "grand slam" by playing in both the National Invitation and NCAA basketball tournaments.

The three of them, through spokesmen, indicated today they would be receptive to double bids, if forthcoming.

At the same time Asa Bushnell, who occupies an important role in both tournaments, said there would be no official objection.

He said that the matter would be entirely up to the authorities of the individual colleges.

"Kentucky played in both last year," he added, "and I don't know of any harm that came from it."

Bradley, the nation's No. 1 team and Duquesne, ranked fifth, along with St. John's of Brooklyn, were tapped yesterday to play in the Invitation, opening at Madison Square Garden March 11.

Bradley's Braves, boasting a gaudy 26-3 record, are an outstanding candidate to represent District 5 in the NCAA elimination, beginning March 23.

Solid Bet For NCAA Duquesne looks like a solid bet for the District 2 nod in the NCAA.

Kentucky's defending national champion haven't been designated for either competition yet but are a cinch for the Invitation and a leading candidate for an NCAA berth from District 3.

Last year, although heavily favored, they were bumped in the first round of the Invitation, won ultimately by San Francisco. But they went on to capture the NCAA crown.

There is no conflict in dates. The Invitation, a 12-team elimination, is scheduled March 11, 13, 14, 16, 18. The eastern NCAA playoffs will be staged at the Garden March 23, 25 with the western playoffs at Kansas City March 24, 26. The final is set for the Garden March 28.

K-State Moved Up For Title

MANHATTAN, Kas., Feb. 28—(P)—The Kansas State Wildcats were within a half game of the league-leading Nebraska Cornhuskers today in the Big Seven conference basketball standings.

The Wildcats trounced Colorado, 74-49 last night on their home court to run their league victories to seven against two losses. Nebraska has a 8-2 record.

The K-State team meets Missouri Friday and can tie for the conference lead by winning.

However, Nebraska plays Oklahoma Saturday and the game will again change the first-place status.

In last night's game, the Wildcats moved ahead after two minutes of play and stayed in front the remainder of the rough contest. Their halftime advantage was 38-22.

The loss gave the Coloradoans a 5-5 league mark. Clarence Brannum led K-State with 15 points. Roger Stokes also tallied 15 for Colorado.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

DISASTER AT SEA is depicted in this reproduction of a painting by German artist Willy Stöwer of the sinking of the 66,000-ton Titanic, proud British luxury liner and greatest ocean vessel of her time. The Titanic, bound for New York from Southampton, struck an iceberg off Newfoundland on the night of April 14, 1912, and carried more than 1500 persons, many of them Americans, to their death. It was the maiden voyage of the $7,500,000 floating mansion. Of a new type construction, she was called the world's first truly unsinkable ship. Some 700 passengers survived, thanks largely to wireless distress signals flashed to nearby ships. The world knew little of the great tragedy while it was going on. It was 24 hours afterward before detailed news began reaching New York.

Video Laughs Without Script CHICAGO. (AP)—Animals can get laughs on television without any help from gag writers. Take, for instance, Herbert, the orang-utan. He was in the midst of his unicycle ride on the Super Circus show when he decided to pad his part. He stopped, picked up the wheel and threw it at the band leader.

Herbert was doing a roller skating turn when the urge to ad lib seized him again. He snatched off a skate and hurled it through the bass drum. He got his laughs—and the hook, too.

Tight Control On Potatoes

Senate Votes To Permit Increase In Wheat Acreage

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Senate voted Monday to permit the planting of more cotton and wheat under government price protection—and to require rigid quotas if Irish potatoes are supported next year.

It also rejected a proposal to prohibit the importation of potatoes when there is a domestic surplus, as there now is.

The Senate wrapped up these and miscellaneous other farm matters in a catch-all bill which it passed by a vote of 53 to 24 and sent back to the House. Numerous differences remain to be adjusted by conference between the two bodies.

The bill came to the Senate essentially a measure for the allotment adjustment of acreage allotments under the government's cotton price program. During a week's intermittent debate, the Senate put most of the emphasis on the potato problem. Although it voted some restrictions on 1950 potato price supports, it rejected a proposal to cut them off immediately and keep them off until the growers agree to a tight production control program.

That drastic remedy, proposed by Democratic leader Lucas of Illinois, was rejected Friday.

Propose Rigid Quotas

The bill as passed by the Senate provides that:

1. Potatoes raised this year can qualify for price support if they were grown under regional marketing agreements, which govern the size and quality of potatoes which may be shipped.
2. The 1951 crop would be supported only if the growers agreed to rigid nationwide quotas on the number of bushels that could be planted and harvested.
3. The agriculture department may sell at cost surplus potatoes it has acquired under the price support program.
4. An additional 600,000 to 790,000 acres of land may be planted to cotton, over and above the 21,000,000 acres permitted by the 1949 farm law. (The House voted for a new expansion of 1,400,000 to 2,000,000 acres.)
5. Millions of acres of additional land may be planted to wheat in new areas brought into wheat cultivation since the war. Senators Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) and Millikin (R-Colo.), who sponsored the amendment for the benefit of western states, estimated the increase at 1,400,000 acres. The agriculture department said it would add about 4,000,000 acres. The current acreage allotment for wheat is approximately 73,500,000 acres compared with 83,000,000 acres planted in 1949.
6. Peanut growers can sell their excess production to the government for crushing into oil. The growers would not get support prices on the excess production. The Senate threw out a House provision which would have added 100,000 acres to the present 2,100,000 allotted for peanuts.

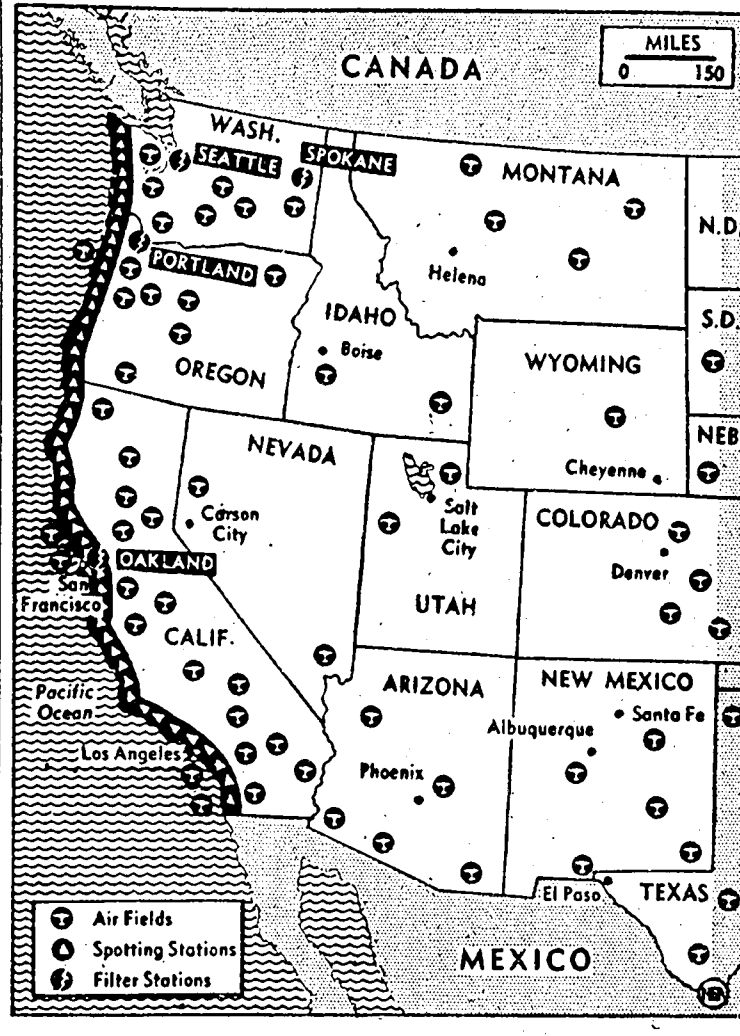

Chairman Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) of the Senate agriculture committee put through the proposal to let the government sell the surplus potatoes at cost.

Before they could be destroyed or given away, they would have to be put up for sale at the point of storage in surplus areas for consumption in areas where there is a shortage.

Thomas said it would make potatoes available at about 2 cents a pound. He said that in many parts of the United States they now are selling for 3½ to 5 cents a pound.

Run To Grass Fire

Fire companies were called to 1109 East Broadway at 4:12 o'clock Monday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire. There was no damage resulted.

ALERT IN THE WEST—The Western Air Defense Command will set up "as soon as possible" a tightly knit dual system of air raid warning and aircraft spotting along the entire Pacific coast area. A call has gone out for 50,000 volunteers to man spotting and warning stations within the command, indicated by white area on map. Of these, 25,000 will be needed for California alone. Spotting stations will be eight miles apart along the length of the coast. Spotters will feed their reports to seven "filter" stations, (four shown) these coordinate reports and pass them on to the Air Force. Key raid warning centers will be manned "24 hours a day, seven days a week indefinitely." After organization is completed, personnel trained and practice exercises held, the aircraft spotting system will go on "standby" basis. The systems will be adjuncts of a radar warning network now partially developed.

Sixty Rescued In Wheeling Fire

WHEELING, W.Va., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Fire ravaged half a business block in downtown Wheeling last night, hospitalizing at least two persons and causing untold damage.

A crumbling wall of the six-story Danny Phillips building, where the fire started, toppled over in the immediate vicinity of a number of firemen. It was thought at first they were trapped under the debris, but the fire fighters had cleared the area in the nick of time.

One person hospitalized was a 78-year-old man suffering from shock. He was evacuated from his bed in one of the fire-damaged buildings by rescuers.

Another was a woman whose injuries were not determined.

Firemen rescued at least 60 persons with ladders. They included a group of dancing pupils and instructors, many of them scantily clad in dancing costumes. The fire swept from the Phillips building next door to the Arlington hotel, then spread rapidly to

A high tension wire dangled threateningly above the fire fighters as they worked against the blazing front, but it held.

The fire was reported under control at 8:40 p. m., but the entire fire fighting force remained at the scene to squelch the smoldering embers.

Snags Hanging Plane Wheel

John Vess With Dexterity Saves Possible Crackup

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—John Vess, 23, leaned out of the little training plane 1,500 feet above the earth. Frantically he tried to lasso the broken wheel assembly.

Finally he made it. He snubbed the rope tight and his pilot, Bud Jones, 28, brought the little ship in safely on the crippled landing gear.

But it was a tough 30 minutes for all concerned Monday afternoon.

Vess and Jones, both of Jefferson City, were flying the new plane to nearby Columbia, Mo. As they took off from Municipal Airport here their boss, Ray Brummett, noticed that one side of the undercarriage dropped sickly.

The small craft carried no radio.

Chase Crippled Plane

Brummett hopped in another plane and chased after the crippled plane.

He pulled alongside about 15 miles from here and excitedly motioned at the other two fliers. They caught on.

Vess first opened the door and tried to snag the ranging wheel with his belt. When that didn't work he grabbed a rope out of the baggage compartment and started a loop whirling down through the slipstream. Frantic minutes and many lassoes later, he caught the wheel.

By hauling up tight on the rope he managed to get the wheel back in place and hold it until they landed. The alerted ambulance went back to town without any passengers.

Jones, a combat pilot in Europe during World War II, sighed: "Let's start another war. It's safer."

Slays One Of Two Prowlers At Home

SAVANNAH, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A young farmer found two men prowling in his home Monday night and shot one of them dead when they started to run, Sheriff George Gibbons said.

The other man escaped. Six highway patrol troopers, the sheriff's deputies and a number of other men started a search for him.

The sheriff said Dale Clark, 45, of St. Joseph, was shot fatally in the chest. Before Clark died, Gibbons added, he told several witnesses his companion was Earl Edward Wilfong, 42, an ex-convict who has been living near DeKalb, Mo.

The farmer, Thomas Thompson, 26, who lives nine miles west of Savannah, related this story of the shooting.

Thompson and his wife started to drive away from their home about 6 p. m. as they turned onto the highway they met two men on foot. Looking back, the Thompsons saw the men walking down the lane toward their house. Thompson stopped at a neighbor's home, borrowed a .22 caliber rifle, and drove back home with the car lights off. There was a light in the house.

While Mrs. Thompson stayed in the car, the farmer stood behind a tractor in the yard and yelled for the men to come out. The two men dashed out and started to run. Thompson fired 10 or 12 times and one of them fell.

Sheriff Gibbons said Mrs. Thompson's purse, containing $3, was found in Clark's pockets.
